

Ready for Showdown

A tank from the French Army's 2nd Armored Brigade rumbles through the village of Nogent sur Seine on its way to Rambouillet, 30 miles southwest of Paris. Scores of tanks moved into camps within easy reach of the capital. Officially the tanks, elements of three brigades, were returning from maneuvers in Mailly in eastern France but they were available to move in swiftly in case of a showdown between the government and defiant Communist and leftist forces.

Metallic Object the Size of Sub Found, But Navy Still Uncertain

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The Navy reported today locating what it described as a metallic shaped object the size of a submarine off Virginia, but a top admiral said chances were "almost nil" that it may be the USS Scorpion.

Vice Admiral Arnold F. Schade, commander of the over-all search for the missing nuclear sub Scorpion and its crew of 99, said the vast sea hunt which has now been going on four full days has turned up nothing significant.

The metallic object was detected about 70 miles from Cape Henry, Va., and Navy divers are trying to find it. "It is not one of the registered and known hulls," Schade said. Asked what he thought the chances were this could be the Scorpion, Schade said: "I think it is almost nil because if it was the Scorpion, at that depth I'm sure we would have heard something. He would have been able to indicate his presence."

McCarthy, Kennedy Ready For National Television Test

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Sens. Eugene J. McCarthy and Robert F. Kennedy, each trying to block the other's bid for the Democratic presidential nomination, will meet face-to-face Saturday in a nationally televised debate.

Until he lost to McCarthy Tuesday in the Oregon primary, Kennedy had been ignoring his opponent's daily challenges to join him before the cameras.

Oregon boosted McCarthy's stock at Kennedy's expense and suddenly made it harder to say no to a debate. The ABC network announced Thursday the pair would meet on a one-hour telecast, entitled "Issues and Answers: A Special Report," originating from KGO-TV in San Francisco. It will be seen alive across three-fourths of the nation—at 9:30 p.m. in the East, 8:30 p.m. in the Central states and 7:30 p.m. in the Mountain states. In the Western time zone a taped broadcast will be shown at 9:30 p.m.

MU Student Is Shot

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — A University of Missouri freshman was shot and wounded early today as helmeted police used tear gas to break up crowds of students who gathered around women's living units and threatened to force their way inside.

Eugene Randall Mark, 19, of Gary, Ind., was struck in the back by a bullet which passed through his body and came out of his chest. He is listed in satisfactory condition at Boone County Hospital.

Police Chief Paul B. Cheavens said only that the shooting is being investigated and that Patrolman John Dye has been suspended pending the outcome of the investigation by Prosecuting Attorney Frank Conley.

Talks Blamed For Fighting Increase

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S.-North Vietnamese talks in Paris have brought sharper action in the Vietnam war. Like two wrestlers, the two sides grope for holds that will lead to a spectacular throw.

The U.S. Command has predicted a further escalation in fighting and latest allied intelligence seems to bear this out. U.S. sources have said privately that neither side is likely to score a decisive victory in the near future.

Thus neither can bargain in Paris from a position of absolute strength that would force concessions. Many in Saigon recall former Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge's recommendation to President Johnson when there were hints that peace talks might start in 1966. Lodge recommended increasing the pressure on the enemy to the maximum show real signs of wanting peace. Even the most minor concession, Lodge urged, should not be agreed to unless a counter-concession was won.

Therefore bigger battles, higher casualties—probably the largest of the war on both sides—and claims of decisive victories are forecast. Indications are that each side also will

De Gaulle's Action Slows Strike Effort

PARIS (AP) — The great French strike wave seemed to be receding today under the countermeasures of President Charles de Gaulle. The chief of state, following up his dissolution of the National Assembly, named a new government with Georges Pompidou back as premier.

Reports of a back-to-work movement flowed in from all parts of the country except the Riviera. These covered mostly small plants or partial resumption of activity in other fields.

However, Automobiles Peugeot S.A., announced it will resume work next Tuesday at all its plants in the Paris area, Mulhouse and Vesoul.

Other big key industries showed no signs of a break, but the solidarity of the strikers had been broken and the movement was toward normalcy. Union leaders said they were ready to reopen talks on wage hikes for still idle millions.

Military units which had been on maneuvers returned to their bases and were reported on alert status. In the Cabinet shift, Maurice Couve de Murville became minister of finance and economic affairs. Michel Debre, outgoing finance minister, succeeded Couve de Murville as foreign minister.

Pierre Messmer was returned as defense minister and former Premier Edgar Faure remains as minister of agriculture. There were five notable changes. Christian Fouchet, interior minister was dropped. So were Louis Joxe, justice minister; Georges Gorse, minister of information; and Francois Mitterrand, minister for sports and youth affairs. Alain Peyrefitte, education minister resigned last week.

The first round of elections for a new National Assembly was set for June 23. Rene Capitant, a left-wing Gaullist who criticized Pompidou last week, was named justice minister.

Raymond Marcellin, an independent Republican who has been minister for economic planning, was named interior minister with control over the police. Two gasoline companies announced they were starting to deliver gasoline to Paris service stations. Activity in the Alsace region of eastern France was reported almost back to normal, except for the railways. Mail was delivered in Angoulême, in south-central France, for the first time in two weeks. Some workers were asking for police protection to thwart efforts of

Viet Cong Press Attacks Against Vietnam Capital

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong troops pressed hard on two sides of Saigon today in a new outburst of fighting in the capital and two enemy rockets landed northwest of Saigon's sprawling Tan Son Nhut air base.

Other enemy forces trained big Russian guns for the first time on allied bases in the central highlands. There were no immediate details on the newest rocket attack near Tan Son Nhut.

Enemy pressure was maintained as North Vietnamese and U.S. negotiators met for the sixth session of cease-fire talks in Paris. In a news conference today the second-highest Viet Cong ever to defect, Col. Phan Mau, 38, said the Communist strategy was to keep up attacks on South Vietnamese cities to improve the bargaining position in Paris. South Vietnamese bombers plastered Viet Cong troops

Johnson Accepts Cut in Spending

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson was reluctantly agreed to accept a $6 billion cut in government spending in order to get the tax increase he thinks vital to the nation's economy.

His decision to bow to Congress' budget-cutting after nearly two years of battling for a 10 per cent income tax surcharge was disclosed at a Memorial Day news conference at the LBJ Ranch.

The President said the tax increase was urgently needed to stave off economic chaos. But he previously contended any budget slash exceeding $4 billion would be against the national interest.

191 Killed So Far On US Roads

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The number of traffic deaths across the nation during the long Memorial Day holiday weekend climbed today at a steady pace. Most of the four-day observance still lay ahead.

The total number of persons killed in vehicle accidents since the start of the holiday period stood at 191 today. A total of 488 traffic fatalities were counted during a recent nonholiday weekend of similar length.

The National Safety Council has estimated that between 625 and 725 Americans may lose their lives in traffic accidents in the period from 6 p.m. Wednesday to midnight Sunday. "The toll is running behind the same period last year," a council spokesman said. But he pointed out that the 1967 toll of 608—a Memorial Day weekend record—was below even the minimum estimated for this year's holiday period of equal length.

The ships diverted Thursday will sweep eastward from a point 400 miles out of Norfolk to the last known position of the Scorpion, the Navy said. While doggedly keeping up the hunt for the lost ship, officers at Atlantic Fleet headquarters reported crank calls were plaguing families of the Scorpion's crew. The callers pose as Navy officers and give the families false information on the conditions of their loved ones, they said.

Some 60 of the Scorpion's men had families in the Norfolk area. The ships diverted Thursday will sweep eastward from a point 400 miles out of Norfolk to the last known position of the Scorpion, the Navy said.

City Hall Site Topic At Meeting

The lack of consensus by city officials on a site for a new city hall building was apparent at a meeting held Wednesday night in the chambers of Mayor Ralph Walker.

The Weather

Occasional periods of showers and scattered thunderstorms tonight and Saturday. Showers likely ending by Saturday evening. Not much temperature change. Lows tonight near 60. Highs Saturday in 70s. Precipitation probabilities tonight 70 per cent, Saturday 60 per cent.

Nixon Heads South With Plan for 'New' Campaign

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon takes his fight for the Republican presidential nomination into the Deep South today on the eve of a weekend strategy huddle to plan what he calls "a brand new campaign."

The former vice president meets today in Atlanta, Ga., with the Republican chairmen from the Southern states. The weekend session in Key Biscayne, Fla., is intended to present a new, less partisan image of Nixon in the hope of attracting Democratic and independent votes he feels are leaning his way.

Shantytown Becomes a Mudhole

WASHINGTON (AP) — Near-steady rain for two weeks has transformed the Poor People's Campaign shantytown into a 15-acre mudhole but the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy says the weather won't stop the demonstrations.

The rain fell again Thursday but Abernathy, campaign leader and president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, told newsmen: "I'm sure it will clear up. It can't get much worse."

He vowed the demonstrators will stay in Washington until Congress meets their demands for massive programs to help the poor. Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr. visited the encampment for the first time.

The rain has made one great mudhole of Resurrection City, the shanties near the Lincoln Memorial serving as temporary home for some 2,000 demonstrators. But Abernathy said there are no plans to evacuate and added that now that his own A-frame shelter is ready, he and his wife will move in today.

The Rev. George Sparling, pastor of Wesley Methodist Church for the last six years, has received a transfer to the United Methodist Church of Liberty, Mo. The move is the result of several reassignments of clergymen made by Bishop Eugene M. Frank affecting the Missouri West conference of the United Methodist Church. Dr. Clinton Chasteen has been appointed new Sedalia District superintendent. The Rev. Sparling will be replaced by Dr. Thomas Hall, district superintendent in Maryville, Mo.

When a U.S. Special Forces camp at Kham Duc was threatened with being overrun recently, a hasty evacuation of the camp was ordered. A U.S. general called this an American victory. But Kham Duc sat astride a major infiltration route that North Vietnamese engineers are turning into a two-lane road. Evacuating the camp left the enemy with a free hand in the area.

On the other hand, Hanoi has boasted of huge victories against the allies in the Saigon area during fighting earlier this month. In fact the enemy forces were mostly turned back at the city's slum belt, along its outer limits.

Warrensburg, Mo. — A small plane carrying six persons, five of them soldiers bound for Vietnam, crashed on takeoff today at Sky Haven airport west of Warrensburg. No serious injuries were reported.

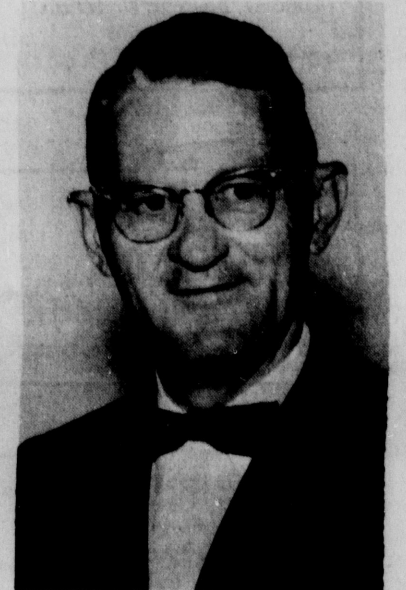

Rev. Sparling Receives Word Of Transfer

The Rev. George Sparling, pastor of Wesley Methodist Church for the last six years, has received a transfer to the United Methodist Church of Liberty, Mo. The move is the result of several reassignments of clergymen made by Bishop Eugene M. Frank affecting the Missouri West conference of the United Methodist Church. Dr. Clinton Chasteen has been appointed new Sedalia District superintendent. The Rev. Sparling will be replaced by Dr. Thomas Hall, district superintendent in Maryville, Mo.

The rain reached cloudburst proportions, with high winds, thunder and lightning as a Memorial Day concert at the Lincoln Memorial got under way in memory of King, who conceived the campaign. The concert was called off as the audience scurried for cover. Many huddled at the base of the statue of the brooding Lincoln. Mrs. King was to speak but never appeared before the crowd in front of the memorial, site of her assassinated husband's 1963 civil rights speech, "I Have a Dream." The deluge broke during Abernathy's opening prayer. But the concert will be held tonight in nearby Constitution Hall. She will narrate Aaron Copland's "Lincoln Portrait."

Mrs. King, dressed in black, visited Resurrection City, chatted with demonstrators and addressed a rally in one of the big tents. The mud reached her ankles. Before the storm, Abernathy led about 1,000 demonstrators on a quick march up the Mall to the Agriculture Department, a consistent target of protests over food distribution policies

Fred Falk

Fred Falk Southwest Lions Head

Fred Falk was elected president of the Southwest Lions Club at a recent meeting of the club held at the Holiday Inn. Falk succeeds Ken Pabst.

Other officers elected: Jim Lewis, first vice-president; Dave Welch, second vice-president; Larry Mathews, third vice-president; Howard Wilson, secretary; Fran Koetting, treasurer; and Carl Hammerly, tail twister. Jim Mathewson and Vic Goering were elected to two-year terms on the board of directors. Formal installation of new officers will be in July. At the business meeting Ban Johnson baseball ticket sales and advertising were discussed. The club sponsors the Ban Johnson team.

Area Woman Wins Polly Dollar

A way to revive dull-looking cultured pearls is suggested in today's Polly's Pointers column on the comic page. The idea comes from Mrs. Dorothy Carter, Windsor, who wins a Polly Dollar.

Services To Begin Sunday At Drive-In

On June 2 the Sky-Vue Drive-In theatre of Warsaw will again be open to the public for the sixth year of open-air services in this area. The casual approach to worship is emphasized since each family may remain in their car during the entire service. Thus it is possible for vacation travelers, week-end residents, and those wishing to join an early worship before the day's activities may do so without extra preparation.

The Drive-In service at the Sky-Vue theater will begin at the usual time of 7:30 a.m. and will be held throughout the summer until Sunday Sept. 1. The morning worship will be led this year by pastors of the Lutheran Church of the Warsaw area and various choirs from these churches will provide the music for each service. The Rev. Roland Nothwehr of Zion Lutheran Church, Lincoln, will conduct the first service on June 2, and will be assisted by the Trinity Lutheran Choir of Cole Camp. Refreshments will follow each service for a few moments of fellowship.

Zion Lutheran of Lincoln is host for these services.

Deep Sense of Identity Called Need of Negroes

By Erwin D. Canham

At the very root of black people's struggle for social justice in this nation today is the search for identity. "Who am I?" is the question every white man has to answer, too. The white man has many aids which give him at least the appearance of identity — his place in white society, his ethnic background and his rich cultural, political, and social history, and so on — but for him, too, really profound answers must come sooner or later.

The black people in the United States are currently emphasizing these more superficial intimations of identity: the dignity and worth of blackness, or negritude, the African background emphasized in the term Afro-American, and so on. These are all useful enough devices. They help. But with the black man, even more desperately than with the white, there must be more profound answers.

The Only Answer

I think there is only one answer: the identification of man as the son of God, as the image and likeness of God. This is the only true and fundamental identity that any of us have. As black and white people perceive and implement through constant interpersonal relationship this true sense of identity we can ultimately solve the problem of race relations in this nation and in the world. I am not trying to weasel out of all the tangible and pragmatic things we have to do to achieve social justice. The schools, the houses, the jobs and the training for the jobs, the opportunities for self-government, the black power structure, the removal of all discriminations, and all the rest of it. But I believe that even if and when we do all of these things we would still have the unfinished business of identity and our pragmatism would turn to the ashes of spiritual unfulfillment.

Therefore, while we apply ourselves to all these practical and necessary tasks, let us remind white people and black who we are. This is not just banal sermonizing. It is a way of life between individuals. To be clear as to one's own identity helps to clarify everybody else's. It sets up a person-to-person relationship which is the very essence of social justice. Who is man, then? Flesh and blood and brain and nervous

Confirmation Class

Louisville Looting Continues

By TERENCE P. HUNT

Associated Press Writer
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Arrests in Louisville's West End climbed to more than 400 today as police and volunteer Negro marshals tried to cope with scattered looting and isolated incidents of sniping.

Police, trying to work without the help of National Guardsmen, arrested about 100 persons, including 20 juveniles, in the predominantly Negro section during a nine-hour period ending at midnight Thursday.

Most were charged with disorderly conduct or breach of peace. Two leaders of the Black Unity League of Kentucky, a militant group composed of teenagers and young adults, were among seven arrested when police stopped a seven-car caravan heading from the West End into the east section of the city. Both men, Sam Hawkins, 25, and Robert Sims, 21, were charged with breach of peace.

The trouble during the fourth consecutive night of racial disorder in the city came despite a plea for calm from the mother of a teen-ager killed in the violence.

"We appeal to everybody to stop this disorder before other mothers and fathers suffer as we are," Mrs. James Groves told a news conference.

Her son, James, 14, and Mathias Washington Browder, 19, were shot and killed Wednesday night in what police said were looting incidents.

Browder was shot by the owner of a liquor store, W. J. Berger, who was charged with manslaughter and released later on a $5,000 bond. Groves was killed by Patrolman Charles Noe. No action was taken against the officer.

Some 2,000 National Guardsmen remained on the perimeter of the West End Thursday in accordance with an agreement reached the previous day between Mayor Kenneth A. Schmied and militant Negroes who agreed to volunteer as marshals and try to keep order themselves, along with city police.

However, Guardsmen accompanied firemen into the West End several times Thursday night as jeering, rock-throwing crowds harassed the firemen. Fire units responded to more than 50 calls by midnight, 20 of them false alarms.

As the flames were extinguished, most Guardsmen returned to the perimeter of the area, although some accompanied police in patrol cars. The Negro marshals aided police in clearing street corner gatherings and attempted to ease tensions.

Responsible Judgement Mark of a Moral Man

Morality no longer is based on obeying moral codes, but in exercising "responsible judgment," a writer explains in analyzing the New Morality.

However, Dr. Luther G. Baker, Jr., quickly appends that ethical codes and laws "are not to be ignored," for they may provide practical yardsticks.

Since the problem of mere survival has been eliminated in the modern world, people face the moral question of the quality of human life, according to Dr. Baker, writing in a major denominational periodical.

The mark of the "moral man," he states, "is his ability — responsibility — to make choices."

What is wrong with lots of persons, he brings out in the May 30 Christian Advocate, is that they "often elect that which seems to promise freedom from the responsibilities of freedom."

Back in ancient times, readers are reminded by Dr. Baker, associate professor of family life at Central Washington State College in Ellensburg, moral behavior was based on "identification with and loyalty to the clan, tribe or state."

Later, Christianity imposed a set of "divine absolutes" for guiding people, while the industrial revolution focused upon "man the economic animal" — a concept played up by Karl Marx and which also is the bedrock of the "Protestant ethic" and the social gospel.

Now the modern era defines human beings as "moral animals" — who have the "moral obligation to choose" for themselves, Dr. Frank explains in the article, footnote to the New Morality.

A point that Dr. Baker drives home is that "a man may be lawful, but immoral," and he highlights that moral human beings are obligated "to go beyond the letter of the law."

However, he shows in the Christian Advocate, bi-weekly magazine for pastors and other leaders in The United Methodist Church, old-time pre-set codes cannot be applied to conduct in advance, but that acts should be judged on the basis of each individual's accepting responsibility in specific situations, for most persons are capable of "objectively assessing reality, of weighing alternatives and making decisions."

WOMEN THE YOUNGER SET GIRLS....

CONNOR-WAGONER

In a widely circulated sermon in 1960, he had said the election of John F. Kennedy as president would lead to "recognition of the Roman church above all others" and sound the death knell of religious liberty in America.

"There were a lot of qualifying phrases in there that didn't get reported," he said, although adding that his estimate has changed. He said he still opposes views of some Catholics that "tax money ought to support church schools."

As for racial integration, he said "it may not come soon, but it will come in God's time." He noted that his huge congregation now includes three Negro members.

"My mother died an unreconstructed Southern rebel," he went on. "I used to say to her, 'Mother, you're mistaken about these things.'"

"But we ought to be allowed to work out our own problems without imported 'foreigners' trying to do it. I don't want somebody from Harlem telling us what to do in Dallas. You can't change people by coercion and legislation."

"You've got to change man's heart."

That call for a "change of heart" is a mark of Dr. Criswell's evangelistic approach, and he says it's the answer to other pressing national problems, such as poverty.

"You can't give to the poor forever," he said. "They'll just stay poor. What's needed is a new heart and new spirit. Once you win them to the Lord, they don't live out there in squalor any more. They pay their debts and buy a home."

When it comes to making Christianity a prospering enterprise, Dr. Criswell is a modern success story. In a downtown area, where many churches in cities have withered and closed, he has built a flourishing religious domain.

It is observing its centennial this year.

Its property is valued at $7.5 million and includes among other things:

An 11-story education building; a five-story "Criswell Building" with offices, chapel, theater and study rooms; a vast, red-carpeted circular sanctuary; a seven-story "Truett Building" including an elaborate nursery and choir rooms; a seven-story recreation building, with a parking garage above and below, a snack bar, skating rink, four-lane bowling alley and gymnasium.

The church also has: An average Sunday attendance of 5,000 at its various services, which are televised as well as broadcast over three radio stations, and with offerings averaging $30,000 to $40,000 weekly.

Twenty-seven choirs, made up of about 2,000 singers, which have turned out more than a dozen recorded albums.

A full-time staff of about 75, including 12 assistant ministers. A Sunday School enrollment of 9,500.

Dr. Criswell, reared in Eldorado, Okla., was a pastor of churches in Chickasha and Muskogee, Okla., before coming to Dallas in 1944.

Amid his present vast operation, he still lends it an intimate touch, standing at the door as each congregation files out to greet what he calls "the saints" with a double handclasp.

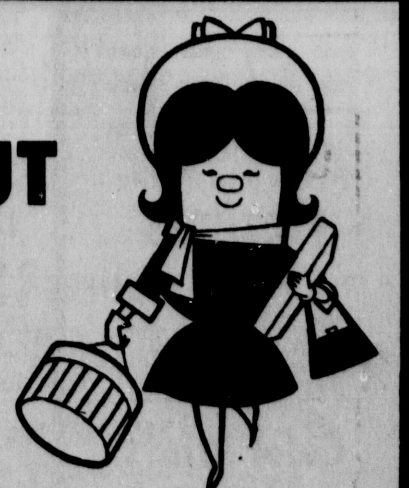

"God be good to you," he calls out in parting.

OBITUARIES

Thomas W. Toliver

Thomas W. Toliver, 55, 420 East 10th Street, died at the Bothwell Hospital at 12:15 p.m. Thursday. He had been in failing health for several months and had been a patient at the hospital since Monday.

He was born at Windsor, Dec. 31, 1912, the son of the late Thomas F. Toliver and Mrs. Serelda Peak Toliver. He lived most of his life in Sedalia, receiving his education in the Sedalia schools.

He was preceded in death by one brother, who died in infancy.

He was married Nov. 18, 1940, to Miss Betty Sullivan. They were the parents of four children. A daughter, Beverly Toliver, died in infancy.

Mr. Toliver was a member of the Harmony Baptist Church.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Betty Toliver; two daughters, Mrs. Donald Collins, 407 East Harvey, and Dwanda Toliver, of the home; one son, Thomas Glenn Toliver, of the home; his mother, Mrs. Serelda Toliver, 1405 East Fourth; two brothers, Spencer Toliver, 413 North Engineer, and Irvin Elwood Toliver, Sedalia; one sister, Mrs. Hattie Beymer, Portland, Ore., and three grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at the Ewing Funeral Home at 10:30 a.m. Monday. The Rev. James A. Allen, pastor of the Olive Branch Church, will officiate.

Burial will be in the Crown Hill Cemetery.

Walter Lee Huffman

PASCO, Wash. — Walter Lee Huffman, 74, died Monday in Pasco, where he has lived for approximately 10 years.

He was a former Windsor resident and was employed at the Farmers Elevator.

He is survived by one son, Perry Huffman, Kansas City; one daughter, Mrs. Irene Spencer, Pasco; two brothers, Ben Huffman, Lexington, and Bill Huffman, Windsor; three step-sons, Milburn Harnes, and Lawrence Harnes, both of Windsor; Gene Harnes, Green Ridge; four grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be at 1:30 p.m. Monday at the Huston-Hadley Chapel in Windsor. The Rev. Bill Law will officiate.

Burial will be in Laurel Oak Cemetery.

Marine Is Convicted In Case

By KEN RINGLE
Associated Press Writer
QUANTICO, Va. (AP) — Marine Cpl. Stanley J. Luczko Jr., 22, has been convicted of voluntary manslaughter in the fatal shooting of an elderly Vietnamese woman while Luczko was on a patrol.

The eight-officer Marine court-martial which found Luczko guilty Thursday night meets today to set sentence. The maximum sentence would be 10 years at hard labor and a dishonorable discharge.

A Marine legal officer said the character references from Luczko's neighbors in Gardner, Mass., plus his "outstanding" service record could weigh heavily in Luczko's favor.

It was even possible, he said, that Luczko might walk free after a sentence equal to the 15 months he has spent in the Portsmouth, N.H., Naval Prison since his first trial where he was convicted of premeditated murder.

That trial, in Da Nang, Vietnam, led to a sentence of life imprisonment, but the conviction and sentence were overturned by a Navy Board of Review which found legal errors in the proceedings.

The woman, Nguyen Thi Co, was slain while Luczko was leading a combat patrol near Chu Lai on Sept. 22, 1966.

Formal testimony in the retrial wound up after Luczko took the stand to dispute prosecution testimony that he had slain her.

He denied statements from two members of that patrol who testified that Luczko speculated on the size hole a .45-caliber bullet would make in the woman, shot her through the forehead with his service automatic, then ordered another Marine to "finish her off."

Luczko admitted shooting at the woman, but said he did so as an "automatic reflex" after the woman suddenly squatted beside a haystack while he was questioning her and thrust her arm into the straw.

Luczko admitted burning the body on the haystack, saying that since the woman was dead he decided to leave her remains as a warning to the Viet Cong.

Only the night before, he recalled, the Viet Cong had captured two members of a neighboring Marine company at Chu Lai, and had mutilated them and sent them back to die in the Marine compound.

Five Deaths Attributed To Floods

WAYNE, N.J. (AP)—The rampaging Passaic River continued to rise today, threatening additional flooding that already has forced the evacuation of several thousand residents.

Five deaths, including those of four small children, were attributed to the flooding, which state civil defense officials termed the worst to hit New Jersey this century.

Damages were expected to soar into the millions.

The hardest hit area was in the Passaic River Basin, a cluster of residential communities 20 miles west of New York City.

The flooding began Wednesday night following torrential rains that struck the northern area of the state.

Four of the major rivers began receding but the Passaic River was expected later today to crest at 11 feet—five feet above the flood stage.

The homeless have been sheltered in high schools, fire stations and community centers. A number of roads in the area were still under several feet of water and impassable today. In some sections the water nearly covered the rooftops of automobiles.

In a scene reminiscent of Noah's Ark, scores of animals were evacuated by boats from a children's zoo in Fairlawn.

Graham on Driving

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham has asked motorists to "drive into others as you would have them drive into you."

Graham, who makes his home at Montreat, N.C., made the appeal in a Memorial Day meeting of the North Carolina Churchmen's Committee for Religious Concern for Traffic Safety.

with the Rev. Paul Wobus officiating.

Burial was in the church cemetery.

Albert P. Stover

LINCOLN — Funeral services for Albert P. Stover, who died Monday at Bothwell Hospital, were held at 11 a.m. Friday at the Fred Davis and Son Funeral Home in Lincoln.

The Rev. Joseph Comer officiated.

hand. But the infiltrators moved in, and several hundred frightened refugees streamed from their homes through a hail of crossfire. Some were wounded.

On the northeastern edge of Saigon, meanwhile, infiltrators slammed bazooka-type rockets and grenades into a U.S. motor pool and a National Police center. Eleven Americans and six government policemen were wounded, but there were estimates of 30 to 40 Viet Cong killed. One U.S. Army gunship helicopter was shot down as it worked against the Viet Cong.

From the central highlands came reports that enemy troops had hauled 100mm Soviet-made artillery down the Ho Chi Minh trail into Laos and Cambodia, and were blasting allied bases from a range of possibly 13 miles.

Military sources said North Vietnamese artillerymen fired 10 rounds into a U.S. 4th Infantry Division artillery base Thursday 10 miles west of Dak To and 5.5 miles from the border junction of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia. The base is less than 300 miles from Saigon and one U.S. source commented: "That's the farthest south we've ever received artillery fire."

Fourth Infantry troops turned back one enemy ground assault with heavy artillery fire 11 miles west of Dak To, and B52 bombers dropped nearly 1,000 tons of bombs northeast of Dak To and west of Kontum in efforts to chop up some 15,000 enemy troops massing in the highlands.

IN THE NEWS

ROLLA, Mo. (AP) — Charlie Smith, 51, of Rolla, was killed when he was struck by a car on a county road some two miles south of Rolla early today.

The highway patrol said Smith walked into the path of the vehicle, which was driven by Steven Molloy, 19, of Rolla.

Accidents

George Edward Baker, 46, of Lima, Ohio, was admitted to the Bothwell Hospital about 2:30 a.m. Friday, suffering injuries received in a one-car accident about 12 miles south of Sedalia on U.S. Highway 65.

Baker suffered a fractured hip and ribs. He was brought to Sedalia by the Sedalia Ambulance Service and examined by Dr. Elliott Braverman and admitted.

According to the State Highway Patrol, Baker was driving a 1964 Buick sedan south on the highway. The car crashed into a large tree known as the "friendly tree" at a small rest park along the highway. The front end of the vehicle was demolished and the windshield broken when Baker was thrown against it.

Troopers Sam Morris and Edgar Dayringer of the Patrol investigated the accident. Bacon's wrecker towed the car back to Sedalia.

the idea that if such a course is followed, the entire block should be purchased by the city to provide parking facilities. Those favoring the present site also pointed out that a new Municipal Building should be located downtown, and not out of the area, as is the Broadway School.

Persons favoring the Broadway School location pointed out that the site selected for the new Municipal Building should take into consideration the entire town, and not just the downtown area. The fact that a new complex on Broadway could be seen and admired by motorists passing through was also brought out.

Mayor Walker appointed Councilman Leo Letourneau to be chairman of a steering committee to work on the new City Hall project. The mayor said he hoped to get enough ground work done to be able to present a bond issue for a new Municipal Building to the voters this fall.

De Gaulle's

militant strikers to keep them off the job.

De Gaulle's appeal for support, coupled with his dissolution of the National Assembly and institution of temporary monetary controls to protect the value of the franc, sent hundreds of thousands of Frenchmen marching through Paris Thursday night in a massive demonstration in his behalf.

It was too early to tell the ultimate outcome, but lines were drawn after two weeks of chaos and tensions appeared eased.

The 77-year-old chief of state, rejecting leftist calls for his resignation, had said Thursday he would remain in office to combat an attempt by "totalitarian communism" to take over the strikebound nation. Georges Pompidou, his executive officer as head of the government, stayed on in the premiership.

Georges Seguy, secretary-general of the Communist-led General Confederation of Labor, told a news conference he was not opposed to restarting negotiations if government and industrial leaders showed signs of making satisfactory concessions. No mention was made of any political conditions.

Seguy and other labor leaders worked out an agreement with Pompidou and industry chiefs early Monday that called for a 10 per cent wage increase during the year and other benefits.

But the workers, who had started the massive strikes without any call from the top, refused to accept the settlement. They wanted more money and other concessions.

The Socialist Workers Force published a communique saying it hoped "the talks will go ahead actively in the sectors where they are started, and that they should be started again where they have been interrupted." The union said it was against all street demonstrations which, "in the present conditions, could only aggravate the situation."

Yves Guena, minister of posts and telecommunications, asked postal workers to get back to their jobs and some were reported heeding the appeal. In Angoulême, mail was delivered for the first time in two weeks.

Reports of a back-to-work movement came from a number of small plants across the country.

But in the big plants there was no change. Strikers at the Boulogne - Billancourt factory of the nationalized Renault automobile works, for instance, decided to stay out and blasted De Gaulle's tough-line speech.

The government and industrialists have shown no inclination to try another bargaining session with the unions. Government talks with civil servants and state-run services such as gas-electricity and the Paris transportation system have been broken off.

In dissolving the National Assembly De Gaulle said new elections would be held if there is no attempt at interference.

Seguy said the General Confederation of Labor, France's biggest union organization, would not in any way hamper the elections. Seguy is a member of the Communist party political bureau as well as head of the federation. The Communists are hoping to pick up strength in the voting, and to take part in the government in case of a leftist victory.

Troops movements were sighted in the Paris area Thursday night. The Defense Ministry said they were merely units returning to their bases after maneuvers, which are normal at this time of year. Other informants said that military units had been placed on an alert basis, a normal precaution in the present troubled situation.

The Thursday night march, surging down the Champs Elysees, was a dramatic backlash by the French middle class against the student rioters, striking workers and Communist agitators that threaten the Fifth Republic.

The outpouring was prompted by De Gaulle's broadcast warning that France faced the threat of Communist dictatorship. He served notice that he intended to resolve the crisis and use whatever force necessary to curb elements that have brought France to its worst postwar crisis.

De Gaulle dissolved the National Assembly, slapped tight temporary controls on the movement of the franc and hinted that he might use the army to break the general strike by some 10 million of France's 16 million workers.

To those who had hoped he would quit under the combined pressure of the strikers and rioting students, De Gaulle declared: "I will not withdraw... the Republic will not abdicate."

De Gaulle also said he was keeping Georges Pompidou as premier and that he had authorized him to replace Cabinet ministers as he saw fit.

Linda Celestine Lee is Wed To Robert Louis Robertson

Mrs. Robert L. Robertson

Miss Linda Celestine Lee and Mr. Louis Robertson were married at two o'clock the afternoon of Sunday, May 12, at the Seal Beach Methodist Church, Seal Beach, Calif. The Rev. Theodore Ervin read the double ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Charles Lee and the son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Robertson, all of Seal Beach. The bride and her parents are former residents of Sedalia. Grandparents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Clay Lee, 2314 South Kentucky.

Escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length white cage gown of lace over crepe, with shoulder length veil. She carried a bouquet of white and yellow chrysanthemums in a short cascade.

Miss Cynthia Karen Lee, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a full length empire gown of lemon yellow chiffon, and carried a nosegay of yellow and white chrysanthemums with baby's breath.

Best man for the ceremony was Mr. Cory Jacob, and ushers were Mr. Daryl Brown and Mr. Larry Culler. Miss Sharon Figgs was guest book attendant.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the church. For a wedding trip to Palm Springs, Calif., the bride selected a multicolored shift ensemble.

The bride is a 1967 graduate of Marina High School and Huntington Beach, Calif., and attended one semester at Golden West Junior College there. The groom is also a graduate of Marina High School and will graduate June 13 from Orange Coast College.

The couple is at home in Seal Beach, Calif.

Western Union Strike Order Given by CTU

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders of the Commercial Telegraphers Union, AFL-CIO, today ordered a strike against Western Union to begin at 12:01 a.m. EDT Saturday.

"I don't think they're going to operate very much," union president E. L. Hageman said of the telegraph company. "We went on strike in 1966 for two days and they didn't send very many telegrams."

Hageman said the union's national negotiating board voted to call the walkout to coincide with the expiration of the current contract after they examined the company's latest offer Thursday night and found it "insufficient."

The union official said the CTU represents 22,000 Western Union employees throughout the nation, with the exception of New York City, where the workers belong to the Communications Workers of America, AFL-CIO.

Hageman said the union is asking an across-the-board wage increase of 7 per cent each year for two or three years, depending on length of contract. The company, he said, has offered raises over three years of 4 per cent, 4½ per cent and 5½ per cent.

Ann Landers

Enough is Enough Plead His Parents

Dear Ann Landers: Several months ago our son was involved in a prank which turned into a problem with the police. The boys were not put in jail, but they were reprimanded by the judge and suspended from school for the remainder of the semester. The story made the newspapers and my husband and I were very unhappy about it.

Our son is back in school now and doing beautifully. We have had no trouble with him since that unfortunate episode and think perhaps it helped give him a sense of values.

The problem is this: Six or seven people in our social group keep bringing up the incident — asking questions and probing to learn if there was more to it than the newspaper printed. Whenever the subject is brought up my husband goes into a depression and is quiet for the remainder of the evening.

Please give me a few Landers-type sample sentences to shut these people up. Thank you kindly, Ann. — ENOUGH IS ENOUGH

Dear Enough: You don't need sample sentences. You need new friends. (I notice you live in Minneapolis. Try some St. Paul people.)

Dear Ann Landers: Our 18-year-old daughter has been keeping steady company with a 22-year-old boy who has been married and divorced. When I say steady I mean every night for the past eight months. I have proof that they have been intimate. When I confronted Martha with the evidence several weeks ago she screamed, "We are going to be married next year. Get off my back."

Martha walks with a limp and feels she is lucky to have a boyfriend because of this small defect. I am worn out from trying to talk sense into her head. She accuses me of being old-fashioned and meddling in her personal affairs. Last week Martha threatened to move out of the house and live with her boyfriend if I didn't quit picking on her.

My heart is heavy. I feel as if I have failed completely. Our two older daughters married fine men and have lovely families of their own. I fear this girl is going to wind up in deep trouble. Should I keep talking to her or should I just give up? — GOING AROUND IN CIRCLES knows your speeches by heart so stop wasting your time. Unfortunately, the limp has probably given her a sense of inferiority if not utter worthlessness. Girls who feel worthless often pick bums as boyfriends. Have you considered professional help for her?

Dear Going: Your daughter

Dear Ann Landers: My husband's six-year-old nephew is wrecking our marriage. Last weekend the boy walked on our couch with his muddy shoes, wrote on our hall walls with red crayon, tore up three new magazines and ripped apart my flowered hat.

Yesterday I told my husband I was going to whale the tar out of that kid if he ruined anything else. He said, "You can't touch him. He's not your child." Is he right? — BOILING

Dear Boiling: Children who are permitted to run wild and destroy property grow up to be a problem to themselves and to everyone else.

You should insist that the child behave in your home or not come back, and your husband should back you up. Where's this poor kid's mother, anyway?

Disney's Influence Persists

By Bob Thomas

ANAHEIM, Calif., (AP)—The presence of Walt Disney pervades Disneyland, a year and a half after his death.

Everywhere in the $100-million pleasure park, painters are adding new coats to glossy surfaces and landscapers are planting flowers and shrubs to bloom in time for the summer onslaught of tourists. During his 10-year rule of Disneyland, Walt continually inspected the place for signs of wear. "If we keep the park looking good, people will respect it," he reasoned. He abhorred the tawdry appearance of most carnivals and fairs, and he employed an uncommon number of trash men to keep the grounds neat.

"Disneyland is in better condition than it ever has been in its history," says Card Walker, a vice president who has emerged as spokesman for the Disney enterprises since headman Roy declines the spotlight. "Several of us regularly tour the park. That's what Walt used to do every week or 10 days, and it's the only way to check on how things look and operate. If things need fixing, you can find out right on the spot."

Disneyland recently clocked its 70 millionth visitor, and several million more will pass through the gates before schools reopen in the fall. The customers will find the park operating at peak capacity of 70,000 rides an hour, as the result of a three-year, $50-million expansion program.

But even the increased number of rides isn't enough to handle the mobs that pour through the gates on the busiest summer days. Hence the Disneyland management has sought ways to spread the attendance load. This summer the park will open at 8 a.m., an hour earlier than ever before.

The principal method of spreading the crowd is to find the nighttime visitors something to do.

"When Disneyland first opened, we found that the preponderance of visitors came in the daytime," said Walker. "So Walt instituted fireworks and entertainment to make it attractive for some of the customers to arrive at 5 in the afternoon and stay into the evening."

"Out of state tourists and people with young children still come in the daytime, and the attendance peak is at 3 in the afternoon. But now many of the teen-agers enjoy coming on dates in the evening, and on some summer Saturdays we can have from 35 to 40 per cent of our attendance after 5 p.m."

To induce the late-comers this summer, Disneyland is plunking out $1.5 million for nighttime entertainers, including Phyllis Diller, Vicki Carr, George Gobel, Flatt and Scruggs and Minnie Pearl.

Young Spenders Puzzle Researchers, Marketers

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Middle-age marketing men are trying today, often with limited success, to focus on what is called the youth market, where fashions are set and many billions of dollars are spent.

The youth market is that imprecise area anywhere from 8 to 38, although generally it is limited to those under 25.

It was the early end of this range that launched the Beatles, wild hairdos and miniskirts. But it is the latter end that finds it difficult to understand. And that's the age of many marketing men.

These marketing men cannot ignore the strange and sometimes unintelligible echos from this age, for its inhabitants influence or even dictate to much of the American economy. Estimates now place at 50 per cent or more the number of Americans under 25. They have power.

As an example, firms that survey this market claim it accounts for more than 60 per cent of movie audiences, and buys more than 55 per cent of records, record players and cameras. They claim also that more than 60 per cent of all first-time brides are teen-agers.

Says Eugene Gilbert of the Gilbert Research Institute: "Any advertiser who touches the responsive chord in youth can generally count on the parent to finally succumb to purchasing the product. Parents generally have little resistance or protection against youth's bombardments."

The impact of young thinking today is felt more strongly than ever not just in fashions and record companies, but in politics, brokerage houses, ad agencies, banks, religion. At least three inside news letters are published here that try to clue the elders into what is going on with their offspring. They are "Young America Report," "Teen Tested Topics" and "The Majority Report."

Newsletters are circulated now to automotive, soft drink, food, magazine, beer and cosmetic companies. A recent issue of the Majority Report told marketing and ad men that in their attempts to reach youngsters their pitch

Vegetable Virus
Virus X, which attacks potatoes, tomatoes, peppers and tobacco, is rod shaped and measures 50,000 to the inch end to end — or 2.5 million side by side.

Yes, I've probably heard every reason people can give when they put off doing something about their life insurance programs.

Maybe you've used a few too.

One that I never hear is "I could die unexpectedly" — before you think of another reason for not providing the protection your family needs why not talk it over — reasonably?

Ultimatum Threatens Scientists

YERMO, Calif. (AP) — Deep in the barren Mojave Desert, archaeologists say they think they've found the earliest evidence of man's presence in the Western Hemisphere.

Now, the painstaking task of proving their find faces a deadline—sundown tonight.

The work at the 5-acre diggings in the Calico Mountains, 10 miles east of Barstow, halted when Glen S. Gunn, a miner holding claims to the federally owned property, ordered the scientists off the land. Gunn values his claims at $25 million and has offered them to the scientists for that sum.

But the archaeologists say they'll resist his demand for them to leave the land.

"We've moved all specimens, all notes and records just in case we should have to grab our hats and run," said Ruth Simpson, expedition director. "But our plan is to stay on at the site despite Mr. Gunn's ultimatum."

Their belief that stone-age relics found at the site, some 106 miles northeast of Los Angeles, is supported by Dr. Louis S. B. Leakey, who discovered, in Africa the earliest known human remains, which may be as old as 1.3 million years.

Leakey has said the evidence gathered at the Yermo diggings, including more than 100 man-made tools, warrants continued research until the age of the relics is proved.

But Gunn said the presence of the researchers is keeping him from digging bentonite, a rare earth from volcanic ash, on claims he has held since the early 1950s.

At the request of the archaeologists, the Bureau of Land Management is assaying the deposits to determine whether the claims are worth mining.

Bread of Two Kinds

"Give Us This Day Our Daily Bread."

Almost all of the human race pay lip service to such a plea in one form or another to a Supreme Being. One surmises that it has become a repetition of words without attention to their significance.

Few people are satisfied with their "daily bread." They desire to express initiative, incentive and ambition to spur them on towards progress and improvement. Material rewards for such endeavors are anticipated and expected. If kept in moderation they should suffice the honest mental or physical toiler.

But the weakness that comes in the face of apparent strength of achievement is the insidious desire for personal gain far beyond the satisfactions of daily bread. Vanity, avarice, deceit, dishonesty, and all their associated trouble-makers, dog the steps of controlled ambition.

When we ask the Lord to provide us with daily bread, the appeal should mean more than for the loaf that comes from the grocer. We need bread to sustain us physically, but we also need the other kind of bread — spiritual food that builds up our resistance to the temptation to committ mischief among our neighbors, or social and business associates.

If we get only one slice of a prayerful request for such a loaf of daily bread, we ought to feel jubilant the Lord listened attentively and recognized we were pleading seriously, not just mouthing by rote:

"Give us this day our daily bread."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Bobby Was Friend of Gas Barons

By DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — If American businessmen are worried about Bobby Kennedy as President, they should forget it. As Attorney General, Bobby leaned over backward to protect one of the biggest gas monopolies in the U.S.A. Generally he was more tolerant on antitrust cases than the Eisenhower administration, generally considered to be the friend of big business.

One of the most interesting and little known testimonials to Bobby Kennedy, as far as business is concerned, is the story of his defense of the biggest pipeline company in the Far West — El Paso Natural Gas — and its monopoly position as a gas supplier to the people of California.

The story begins during the Eisenhower administration in 1959 when the Federal Power Commission, then packed with friends of gas and oil, put its stamp of approval on a merger between El Paso Natural Gas and Pacific Northwest Gas, which would have made El Paso the sole supplier to California and the Pacific Coast.

This aroused the ire of William Bennett, chairman of California's Public Utility Commission, who appealed the decision to the U.S. Court of Appeals. Lee Rankin, Eisenhower's solicitor general, backed Bennett up. They lost. The State of California then appealed to the Supreme Court.

At this point, John F. Kennedy was running for president, and Commissioner Bennett became one of his advance men. He got to know the Kennedy entourage, and looked forward to antitrust cooperation when the Kennedy family got into power.

He was disappointed. When Commissioner Bennett asked the new Democratic solicitor general, Archibald Cox, to join him in his appeal to the Supreme Court, Cox said no.

Bobby Says No

Bennett then appealed to Robert F. Kennedy, the new attorney general, who also said no. Figuring that Kennedy did not know the significance of the situation and the monopoly hold which El Paso Gas would have on gas prices on the Pacific coast, Edmund G. "Pat" Brown, then governor of California, also wrote to Attorney General Kennedy. Again Bobby said no.

"Early in 1961 I talked to Bobby Kennedy at the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco," says Commissioner Bennett. "I tried to explain the importance of this monopoly to the people of California. But I got nowhere. I told Kennedy all I wanted him to do was not to oppose our petition to the Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari. But Bobby said No."

The State of California filed its petition anyway, and believe it or not the Kennedy administration appeared before the Supreme Court and argued against California, on the side of the Power Commission's ruling for El Paso Natural Gas.

Attorney for El Paso was Arthur Dean of the Wall Street law firm of Sullivan & Cromwell. This firm had been retained by El Paso during the Eisenhower administration when its senior partner, John Foster Dulles, was secretary of state.

But the Kennedy administration, under Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, went into court on the side of Sullivan & Cromwell and gave the El Paso-Pacific Northwest merger an O.K.

The Supreme Court, however, ruled otherwise.

Looking Backward

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

The Bothwell Memorial Hospital board elected I. H. Reed president to succeed W. O. Stanley who asked to be relieved after serving capably in that position for 10 years. Others elected were: Vice-president, L.C. Bryson; Secretary, J. Emmet Hurley; Treasurer, Arthur Kahn. Other members of the board are: Mrs. Thomas Walch, Fred Anton, Sr., and Mr. Stanley.

— 1943 —

Dr. John E. Lamy, a First Lieutenant in the Medical Corps of the U.S. Army, last heard from in a letter from Bataan written in March 1942, is a prisoner of the Japanese government. Official information came in a telegram to his wife and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Lamy, 500 South Grand Avenue. Mrs. Lamy presently is a member of Stephens College faculty, and the telegram to her received by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Johns, 705 East Broadway, was forwarded to Columbia.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Sedalia Trust Company, northwest corner of Fourth street and Ohio avenue, is doing some "spring housecleaning." A chimney is being repaired and the exterior of the building will be sandblasted presenting the appearance of almost a new building when completed. The interior is being repapered.

NINETY YEARS AGO

The Democrat received a pleasant call and a delightful serenade from the Sedalia Glee club composed of Messrs George Yates, I.N. Summers, Ed H. Houx, Harry Stryker, M.M. Lampton, F.M. Donohoe, James Lampton and J. W. Gibson. They evidently have been practising some time as their voices harmonized perfectly. This is an organization which should be kept up, and all the girls in town will sav so.

The decision was written by Justice William O. Douglas, intimate friend of Bobby Kennedy, who used the words: "The Department of Justice knuckled under to the El Paso Natural Gas Company." The Department of Justice to which he referred was, of course, under Robert F. Kennedy. The decision ordered the merger between El Paso and Pacific Northwest set aside.

Hiking Gas Rates

If the court had not done this, there would be a complete gas monopoly on the Pacific coast all the way from Canada to Mexico and from the Pacific Ocean to the Rocky Mountains. As an illustration of how this affected consumers, El Paso put across four rate increases against its most prosperous customer, the State of California, before the Supreme Court ruled.

This, however, is not the end of the story. After the Supreme Court set aside the merger, Commissioner Bennett went before the Federal Power Commission and argued that El Paso had no right to increase rates as the result of an illegal merger. FPC agreed with him and ordered El Paso to pay back to the people of California a total of $155 million. It was the biggest rate rebate in the history of the United States.

"I saw Cox twice," Commissioner Bennett recalls, referring to the No. 2 man in the Justice Department under Bobby Kennedy. "I got down on my knees and begged him to support California in opposing this merger. He said that the attorney general felt a little monopoly wouldn't hurt anything."

"You know the power of these boys," I told him. But I got no help from the Kennedy administration whatsoever. Our help came from Attorney General Brownell under Eisenhower.

"Today the man who was head of the antitrust division under Bobby Kennedy, William Orrick, is now a Kennedy delegate for Bobby in California," recalls Commissioner Bennett. "He did Bobby's bidding in the El Paso Gas monopoly case, and he's doing Bobby's bidding in California now."

NOTE: The Supreme Court has now handed down a total of three decisions against the El Paso natural gas battle for a Far West monopoly. In its last decision, the court removed U.S. Judge Walter Ritter of Salt Lake City because he had shown prejudice. U.S. Judge Hatfield Chilson has replaced him and will soon pick a buyer for Pacific Northwest Pipeline. This will mean gas competition in the Far West.

Guest Editorial

FINANCIAL POST: Quid Pro Quo. — From Milan comes a dispatch critical of how English words such as playboy, sexy, and barman sullied the purity of Italian. True: but few stop to think how many Italian words and expressions have become part of the English language.

To take only a few from the realm of music, consider basso, soprano, piano and pianoforte. Brava, in applause, is straight Italian, as also is its derivative bravura. No need to bring up dolce far niente, and nowadays many talk about dolce vita.

Modern Italian words and expressions have entered English no less than ancient ones. In Britain, espresso is synonymous with a kind of strong coffee.

In language, as in trade, reciprocity enriches.

Democrat Pickups

There was considerable discussion going on around about modern math in one household where there were children. The little fellow in the family, too young for school and modern math, kept hearing his family talk about it. One day he could stand it no longer and he queried: "I want to know what you do when you take a modern bath?" H.L.

The doctor was examining some little boys at school and one of them was real scared. "It won't hurt," a grownup assured him. "Naw," said another little boy, "all he is going to do is see if your heart's beatin'." H.L.

Now It's Round Smoke

If a Boston physicist had his way, industrial plant chimneys would be forever blowing smoke rings.

According to the report by Canadian Industries, Ltd., Dr. Timothy Fohl believes that chimneys that blow smoke rings would pollute the air less than those streaming out the usual plume. Because smoke rings have a more stable shape, they could penetrate inversion layers that hold ordinary smoke near the ground.

His calculations indicate that even with a 300-meter stack (about 984 feet), smoke plumes could rise no higher than 750 meters. But a mere 10-meter stack with an internal piston could push the smoke up to 3,000 meters, where it would be dispersed by high-altitude winds.

Giant smoke rings wafting into the sky would be rather a pretty sight, too. Now if only Dr. Fohl could find a way to hang advertising from them, he'd have no trouble getting his idea adopted.

MONEY CLIPS

The 3-Legged Buffalo Nickel

There are many coins considered less than perfect that actually dominate the collectors' want lists. One of these is the 1937-D three-legged Buffalo nickel.

Overlooked or ignored when it was first discovered, this Buffalo headliner today enjoys one of the top spots in the field of valuable coins. Only five other coins of this series exceed the 1937 three-legged Buffalo in worth.

The missing portion was created by a filled die, which literally means something clogged the leg cavity, causing it to leave little if any impression on the planchet.

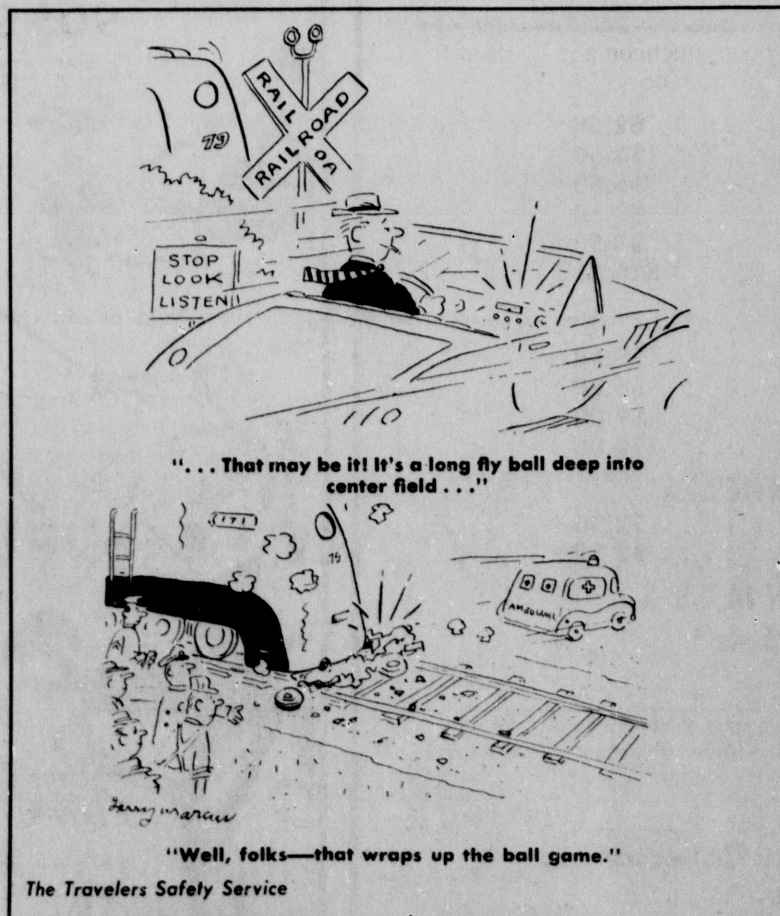

While the absence of the leg on the 1937 has increased its value, the missing feather at the nape of the neck on the Indian seems to have had little effect on the prestige of a few 1918, 1919 and 1921 nickels of the same series. However, some serious collectors do consider the "two-feather variety" a worthy component in a complete set and treat it with the same respect shown the 1937 coin.

CAUTION: As with anything of value, the three-legged Buffalo is being produced from four-legged 1937-D coins. The leg is simply removed. Simply is not the word because these fakes are detectable by coin experts. Most nationally known numismatists and coin dealers are experts and if none are available write to the author in care of this newspaper for the name of a person or firm that can verify a coin in question.

Attitudes & Platitudes

Betty Canary No Sauna--- but Solvent

At a party my host was telling a very funny story about his little black dog who likes to take sauna baths. Eric, who is from Finland, was carefully explaining that the word is pronounced "sow-na" not "saw-na," and a woman was joking about how the dog, Toy Manchester size, had probably started out as a Doberman before he shrunk in the sauna and then a man remarked that the sauna is now THE prestige symbol.

"It has replaced the vacation house, the color television," he said. "Everybody has one."

I inspected the paneled room with its built-in, electrically heated pile of rocks and was given all the facts about the healthy Scandinavians and was told how, just imagine, how healthy I would be stretched out on the slatted wooden bench steaming away, watching the thermostat. All I had to do was loll there and periodically dash another dipper of water from a tiny wooden tub onto those hot rocks.

Obviously, I thought, I must find out more about this latest prestige symbol. Among other things, I discovered that you don't have to have a room built into your house. You can get a portable sauna which can, presumably, be plugged in anywhere—even the poorhouse.

The reason I wanted to point out that fact is because, during my research, I talked not only to some loan companies but also to an attorney. You're right! Those health-giving saunas are turning up on lists prepared by bankruptcy clients, right along with the color televisions and sports cars.

As the attorney told me, "My clients are not deadbeats, but people who, before they knew it, were so deep in debt that only a miracle could save them." He places part of the blame on advertisers. "They say 'pamper yourself,' and 'you deserve it' and coerce people into believing they are either helplessly ignorant or hopelessly archaic if they don't own the latest 'right' thing," he says.

This lawyer tries to channel as many people into Chapter 13 as possible. (This is a Wage Earners' Plan in the 1933 Federal Bankruptcy Act. The petitioner is not relieved of his debts but is given a court-supervised budget program for repaying, thereby leaving his credit record legally undamaged). "Those finding themselves in bankruptcy aren't criminals," he says. "They're taking a real blood bath!"

I decided my health didn't require a steam bath. Anyone for jogging?

DOCTOR'S MAILBAG

Vaccine Booster Shots Valuable Flu Control

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q — Why do some doctors insist on a second shot of flu vaccine two to eight weeks after the first one and others say one is enough?

A — All persons receiving influenza vaccine for the first time or several years after the last vaccination should get a second injection. Those who have been vaccinated every year since 1963 need only a single booster injection, preferably in the late fall. The vaccine should not be given to anyone who is allergic to eggs.

Q — Is there any way to get rid of the scars caused by acne?

A — Some skin specialists use a wire brush that rotates at high speed to remove these scars. This process is called dermabrasion or surgical planing.

Q — I have heard that eating yeast can clear up acne. How does this work? How much yeast should I take?

A — Although yeast and various other vitamin-rich preparations have been used in the treatment of acne, there is no evidence that they do any good.

Q — I am 45 and have acne on my face. Vitamin A helps a little but doesn't cure it. What do you advise?

A — Although in most persons adolescent acne clears up before the 20th birthday, in some it persists in adult life. There is no simple cure for this. Skin specialists report good results in some victims with a combination of antibiotics and female hormone.

Q — I never use bleaches or dyes on my hair but my scalp breaks out with painful pimples. How can I get rid of them?

A — This is acne necrotica which is not related to teen-age acne vulgaris. Some victims are helped by rubbing white ammoniated mercury ointment (10 per cent) into the scalp three or four times a week before retiring and washing it out thoroughly in the morning.

Q — My doctor says I have acne rosacea. What is the best treatment for it?

A — The cause of this disease is not known but it is aggravated by emotional upsets and exposure to heat, cold and wind. If local applications and avoidance of aggravating factors don't help you, electrolysis of the involved area by a skin specialist may be beneficial.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

Q — I've got asthma and the doctor says I should air condition our house. Can I deduct the cost as a medical expense?

A — If air conditioning is recommended by a physician for the treatment of a specific condition or illness and the air conditioning is installed primarily for this reason, it is an allowable medical expense. However, only the excess of the cost over the increase in value of your house resulting from the installation of the air conditioning is an allowable expense.

To show actual medical need for this expense, be sure to obtain a statement from your doctor explaining why he recommends air condition for you.

Q — I'm a student and intend banking my summer earnings. The bank wants my tax account number. What is that?

A — This is your Social Security number. The law requires financial institutions to ask the depositor for his number and to use it when reporting to IRS the interest payments on all savings accounts earning $10 or more during the calendar year.

If you like to overbid, go right ahead provided you restrict your overbidding to good hands and have learned to play your dummies resourcefully.

Midge (Mrs. Sewall) Cutler of Dallas followed these precepts with today's hand. Her seven clubs was quite an overbid but she had become unduly encouraged when her partner had first bid diamonds and then followed with spades.

Midge did have a good hand but when she looked over dummy she didn't like what she saw. She had no chance to make seven unless the diamond finesse worked. On the other hand, if it did work she apparently was one trick short unless the king of diamonds would drop doubleton or unless a squeeze could develop.

There was no reason to cross the squeeze bridge until she got to it. In the meanwhile Midge started by drawing trumps with three leads and discarding one heart from dummy on the third trump.

She had decided that if there were a squeeze it would be in spades and diamonds. Next she took the diamond finesse. It worked and business was looking up.

She shed dummy's remaining high spade and ruffed a spade in her own hand. When East dropped the nine thines began to look as if West had started with five spades. If that were so the squeeze was there. Midge led a heart to dummy's king and a second heart back to her ace. Then she played out her last two trumps.

West was able to jettison a heart on the first of these trumps. On the second he had to let a diamond go in order to keep his high spade. A diamond to the ace dropped West's king and the jack of diamonds was the 13th trick.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—Why is Schubert's Symphony No. 8 in B Minor called his "Unfinished Symphony"?

A—Because it has just two, instead of the usual three or four movements of the classical symphony.

Q—Why did Oliver Wendell Holmes write "Old Ironsides"?

A—He wrote the stirring poem after he heard that the famous ship Constitution was to be destroyed by the government. It caused so many protests against destroying the ship that the ship was saved.

Ohio U. 'Troops' Committed in The War for Minds in Vietnam

By ROGER DOUGHTY
NEA Education Writer

ATHENS, Ohio—(NEA)—Doing something about Vietnam can mean anything from burning your draft card to enlisting. Here on the Ohio University campus it can also mean collection of 15 tons of odds and ends for a Vietnamese orphanage. That's what happened recently.

"We have a special interest in Vietnam," says a student, "that you won't find at most schools. Everybody feels it, and it doesn't matter where you stand on the war."

It's not that Ohio has sent more men off to battle than many another school or that the pros and cons of the conflict aren't argued as hotly in Athens as they are in Boston or Berkeley. It's just that Ohio is more involved with what's happening in the other war in Vietnam—the war for men's minds.

"If the fighting were to end tomorrow," says Dr. Russell Milliken, director of Ohio's International Education Institute, "we could step up our offense on ignorance. It's a war we know we can win, but it will take a great deal of time and money. We have the time and hope, if the fighting stopped, we'd be able to get the money."

Ohio's educational advisers got into the thick of things in Vietnam even before our military men. Two Ohioans were working in the country in 1962 and 16 are there today. Their job is to update an extremely inadequate secondary (high school) education program that has led to widespread illiteracy for generations.

As Milliken explains it, "The Vietnamese have been educated under the traditional French Colonial elite system with only a selected few being chosen for higher education. On a more basic level,

DR. RUSSELL MILLIKEN, director of the International Education Institute of Ohio University, talks things over with some Vietnamese students. Ohio is waging a quiet war against ignorance in Vietnam that is almost unseen and unheard in the wake of the fighting.

our figures show that 80 per cent of the kids in South Vietnam get some schooling. Only 17 per cent make it to secondary school and of that group only two per cent graduate. We'd like to move that figure up to 20 or 25 per cent in 10 years. That's still not much by our standards but it would be a major improvement."

Working in co-operation with Vietnamese educators from the universities of Saigon, Hue and Can Tho, the Americans, led by Dr. Donald Knox, Ohio's top man in Vietnam, have put 12 pilot schools into operation throughout the country. The Ohioans are also introducing new teaching methods, techniques and curricula at the university level so that comprehensive courses in business education, home economics, industrial arts, experimental science and guidance can be offered.

"The great failing of the elite system," says Milliken, "is that it contains only university-oriented courses. If you make it through the system you're prepared to help run the government. If you don't make it you're probably headed for the life of a street cleaner. We feel the educational system should be geared to train the masses as well as the elite."

Money for the Ohio U. program comes from the Agency for International Development, which complicates things a bit.

"Congress has to approve our funds," says Milliken, "and they do it one year at a time. We sometimes find it hard to communicate a feeling of permanence when we're not even sure about next year's cash. The Vietnamese find it difficult to understand the way these things work, but we really can't complain."

Offering a comprehensive program to keep people in school while a war goes on around you is far from easy, as the Ohio educators have learned.

"It's a problem of how fast the Vietnamese can absorb the switch in culture," says Milliken, "along with a lot of technical things. For example, when we wanted to offer a typing course for business students we found that there was no such thing as a Vietnamese typewriter. We finally got one of the major American manufacturers to make one, but we had to promise that we'd buy a lot of them before we could even get the thing 'invented.'"

The success of the Ohio U. program is starting to tell. "We're getting some students," Milliken reports, "who could go to the elite schools. They like what we're doing and they want to get in on it. That's a good sign."

One of the problems the Ohio people report is that the officials they work with in the South Vietnamese government, members of the ministry of education, are products of the elite system.

"Some of them take the attitude," says Milliken, "that if the elite system produced them it can't be too bad. That's a tough point to refute."

Arguments and wars aside, Ohio U. is in Vietnam with plans to stay. "When the troops go home," says Milliken, "we'll still be there. If there's one thing America can be proud to export it's our educational system."

Ignore TV Ad Awards Ceremony

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — One awards ceremony of interest to television viewers is unlikely to get on camera: The presentations for commercials that recently won for their makers "Clio's," the advertising agencies' equivalent of the motion picture's Oscar.

Messages from the sponsor do, after all, occupy the television screen at least one-sixth of all air time. Most viewers react more violently to commercials they dislike than to shows they don't like. They can skip the show, but must just suffer through a minute commercial.

A half-hour roundup of the season's award-winning commercials would be interesting. But since the major networks are in fierce competition for sponsors and since air time is purchased at great cost, it is highly unlikely such a program will ever make the channels.

At the "Clio" award ceremonies of the American Television and Radio Commercials Festival last week, about 60 statuettes were passed out. But since a commercial must be seen or heard to identify, most of them, even with titles, are difficult to recall.

This viewer recognized from titles and brief descriptions a few of the top awards winners. One was that series of bitterly funny case histories of the build-up of king-size headaches. Another was the cartoon commercial showing a nagging dialogue between a man and his unhappy stomach. A third was the series of tongue-in-cheek dramas plugging pitted prunes.

Meanwhile, the television code committee of the National Association of Broadcasters has recommended that certain restrictions on advertising products for personal use be relaxed and that instead of banning the product, the commercials be judged individually.

Involved specifically is advertising about two hemorrhoidal preparations and one personal hygiene product. The recommendations will be acted upon by the NAB board in mid-June.

The industry code currently bars advertising of "particularly intimate products which ordinarily are not freely mentioned or discussed."

Each Morning Is Foggy

Calendar and Clock Both Needed to Face New Day

By JOY STILLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Life might be simpler if I kept a calendar, as well as a clock, on my bedside table.

When the alarm goes off I make a groggy effort to struggle awake and face the day. It would help, though, to know just what day it is I'm facing.

I can usually tell what season it is by noting whether the fan or the electric blanket is turned on, but aside from that, I haven't the slightest notion if it's Monday or Friday or points between.

Not only do I not know when and where I am, but when I grope my way toward reality I often don't even know who I am.

I haven't any hope of living through the day, but on the vague chance that I might make it I mutter to myself through sleep-swollen lips: "If I survive until tonight I am going to get to bed early tonight, no matter what."

The fact that I made this same vow the day before and the day before that escapes my slumber-clouded mind.

There's always the comforting thought that on weekends I can sleep late, and I wrap that promise around me like a warm blanket in the chill moments of awakening.

When those longed-for days of leisure do finally come, guess who's awake, bright and alert, at the usual getting-up time! No matter how hard I try, I can't get myself back on the road to the Land of Nod.

You just can't win in the sleep department, anyhow, I've discovered. When I wake up in the middle of the night, cold with terror after having been chased by a jet-airplane-sized cricket or menaced by ghouls in an ancient graveyard, I get up and read to banish the nightmare completely from my thoughts.

But the moment I get back to sleep, there's the whole cast of fiendish characters from the late, late show, back on the job after the station break.

If I wake up while I'm dreaming I just broke the bank at Las Vegas or have been chosen Miss Kumquat of 1968, I immediately close my eyes tightly to try to recapture the fantasy. But it turns out that's the end of the program—and there's nothing good on any of my mind's other channels.

Possibly the solution to the sleeping problem isn't adding a calendar, but subtracting a clock. Then I wouldn't spend all night peering at it to see the time and trying to figure out how many hours of slumber I'm not going to get.

Hal Boyle is ill.

Oppose Unit Rule for State Convention

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Freedom Inc., one of the largest Negro political organizations in Kansas City, will oppose adoption of the unit rule for Missouri's Democratic delegation at the state convention Saturday.

The executive committee of Freedom Inc. said Thursday it also would refuse to endorse Gov. Warren E. Hearnes as a favorite son. The statement said the governor has conclusively demonstrated that he lacks concern and interest in the Negroes.

Freedom Inc. controls 30 of the 108 5th District delegates to the state convention in Jefferson City.

Most of the delegates and party leadership favor binding Missouri's 78-member delegation under the unit rule to cast its 60 votes at the national convention for Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

The statement by Freedom Inc. included a lengthy indictment of Hearnes' attitude toward Negroes. For instance, it said the governor's reaction to the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King "directly affronted and insulted the 400,000 black citizens of this state."

The United States acquired Nevada and Utah by the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, which closed the Mexican War in 1848.

Progress in Negotiations

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A critical phase of the labor negotiations for the nation's basic steel industry is winding up this week, apparently giving bargainers their best start in years for contract talks.

Because of an early start and a switch in format, thousands of local issues have been settled during six weeks of intensive plant and company bargaining.

Now labor and industry management teams will be able to start on the basic economic package in New York on Monday without many of the distractions that bottled up past negotiations.

"There's some real trail blazing going on," said a veteran official of the United Steelworkers of American headquarters team.

He said the decision to put the local negotiations first was unprecedented for the American labor movement as far as he knew. In the past, the industry-wide settlement was worked out first, then the local bargaining began, usually in the crisis atmosphere of an approaching strike deadline.

"This has given us an opportunity to get at the gut issues that used to get people all worked up," he said. As an example, he pointed to the rash of local walkouts that followed companywide settlements in the auto industry this year.

Labor and management, both anxious to avoid tempting government intervention with a strike during wartime and an election year, worked out the stepped-up timetable and the procedural change after a proposal for arbitration fell through.

Both sides say that nobody gains when the government steps into negotiations as it has 13 times in the 20 major steel settlements since 1937.

The contract for the 450,000 steelworkers expires Aug. 1. A strike has been predicted by many industry-related insiders, such as purchasing agents. Steel consumers have been stockpiling at record rates.

The number of local issues brought to the bargaining table by the 450,000 steelworkers was huge. One local in Ohio produced more than 4,000. Lists of 800 or more were common in the mills around Pittsburgh.

The rank and file wanted such things as a new parking lot, the washroom painted, brighter lights in the halls, a fulltime doctor, or incentive pay for janitors.

Unser Kept Up a Steady Pace to Win Indy '500'

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Bobby Unser had a big grin on his face and an undetermined amount of prize money in sight as he discussed his victory—and the failure for the second consecutive year of the imposing turbines—in the Memorial Day 500-mile auto race.

"I couldn't believe it," said Unser, who whipped his turbo-charged Offenhauser across the finish line in front after the three powerful turbine racers entered by Andy Granatelli had faltered and failed—one with only 9 laps to go. The turbines included the leading qualifiers and the race leader for 32 laps.

"I feel they missed the best chance they had in their lives," Unser said. "I said before the race if Granatelli didn't win this one he ought to pack up and go home. The best I can figure, the good Lord just didn't want them to win."

Unser's prize money will be announced tonight at the traditional victory dinner.

It depended on attendance, cut by prolonged rain that made the infield a quagmire, and on the accessories Bobby carried on his American Eagle and its engine.

Fans, meanwhile, to whom the $750,000-or-so purse has only an academic interest, marveled at how close Thursday's script came to following that of 1967, and how true it is that a race driver who won't be beaten often isn't.

The 34-year-old Unser, who has had two racing brothers, a racing father and two racing uncles, simply charged until his strongest competitors—notably the favored Lotus turbines—fell apart. He has done that—beating whoever faced him—in four straight U.S. Auto Club championship races.

The stick for his own low gear failed, costing him precious seconds on the three compulsory pit stops. He saw his brother Al crash in the southwest turn, noted he was apparently unhurt, and continued charging.

These Unser boys were running on the track where their brother Jerry was killed in 1959. They also lost an uncle in a stock car test run.

Bobby, winning for the first time, led three times in the race but appeared hopelessly behind Lotus turbine driver Joe Leonard with the end almost in sight. Then, with 20 miles to go, Leonard's turbine died and he coasted off the track, just as Parnelli Jones did last year in the original turbine with 7½ miles to go.

S. A. Silbermann, head of the speedway technical committee, said the Pratt & Whitney turbines have a governor which shuts off the engine if the throttle is advanced too quickly. Leonard's trouble came when he got the green light after a minor accident had slowed the pace.

"I thought I had the race won when I got the green," Leonard said. "Then, it happened. As the green flag came out, my car went out—just died out on me, like a flameout."

A national organization of race writers and broadcasters had picked the three turbines to finish one-two-three. They were driven by Graham Hill of London, Leonard, of San Jose, Calif., and Art Pollard of Medford, Ore.

Hill, the 1966 winner, never led and crashed after 111 of the 200 laps after losing a wheel. Pollard's turbine quit after 188 laps. The technical committee called it a gear box failure.

Nobody was hurt in the race, which brought sunshine for the first time in eight days. The lead changed eight times in furious competition.

Leaders were Leonard, first seven laps; Bobby Unser, laps 8-56; Lloyd Ruby, Wichita Falls, Tex., 57-89; B. Unser, 90-112; Leonard, 113-119; B. Unser, 120-165; Ruby, 166-174; Leonard, 175-191, and B. Unser, 192-200.

As the turbines crashed or died, turbocharged Offenhausers, perfected only this year, powered nine of the 11 cars which were still running when Bobby Unser crossed the finish line.

It was a great day for Gran Prix racer and All American Eagle auto builder Dan Gurney, Santa Ana, Calif. Unser set a race record of 152.882 m.p.h. in an Eagle and Gurney followed him across the line in second place.

World road racing champion Denis Hulme of New Zealand finished fourth in another Eagle behind Mel Kenyon of Lebanon, Ind., who had a Gerhardt-Offy. Unofficially, others running at the finish were Ruby, fifth; Ronnie Duman, Indianapolis, sixth; three rookies—Billy Vukovich, Fresno, Calif., seventh; Mike Mosley, La Puente, Calif., eighth, and Sam Sessions, Nashville, Mich., ninth; Bob Grim, Indianapolis, 10th, and Bob Veith, Santa Rosa, Calif., 11th.

Vukovich, whose father won the 500 twice, and Gary Bettenhausen, whose father was a longtime 500 contender, were impressive newcomers. Gary was eliminated by hitting debris from Al Unser's wreck. Both their fathers died in Indianapolis accidents.

A. J. Foyt Jr. of Houston, who won last year when Jones' turbine quit, missed a chance for an unprecedented fourth 500 victory when engine trouble stopped him after 87 laps.

The turbines' failure probably took the steam out of a campaign to ban them at a June meeting of the USAC Rules Committee.

Mighty Mantle Enjoys One of His Better Days

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Memorial Day against Washington usually gives Mickey Mantle something to remember. Most any day against Oakland gives the Boston Red Sox something to forget.

The mighty Mickey, last of the New York Yankee superstars, enjoyed one of the most productive days of his illustrious career Thursday. He whacked two home runs, a double and two singles and drove in five runs as the Yankees walloped Washington 13-4 in the opener of a doubleheader. The Senators bounced back to take the nightcap 6-2.

Exactly 12 years earlier—Memorial Day, 1956 — Mantle slammed a pitch from Washington's Pedro Ramos off the facade of the Yankee Stadium roof. It missed by only a few feet of being the first fall ever hit out of the big Bronx ballpark, a still unaccomplished feat.

While Mantle was slugging, the defending American League champion Red Sox were slumping. The upstart Oakland A's shelled them 6-2 behind Lew Krausse's four-hitter and pulled into a fifth-place tie with the Sox and Yankees. Oakland has beaten Boston six of seven this season.

Elsewhere, Detroit whipped California 7-3, Baltimore blanked the Chicago White Sox 5-0 and Cleveland nipped Minnesota 3-1.

In the National League, St. Louis defeated San Francisco 6-0, Houston bombed Atlanta 11-0, Los Angeles beat Cincinnati 5-3 and the New York Mets swept a doubleheader from Pittsburgh 6-3 and 5-4. The Chicago Cubs and Philadelphia were rained out.

Mantle began his big day with a two-run homer in the first inning. He singled and scored in the third, homered again in the fifth, doubled home a run in the sixth and singled in another in the eighth. The homers were his fifth and sixth of the season and gave him a career total of 524, 10 behind Jimmy Foxx, No. 3 on the all-time list.

The aging Mickey sat out Thursday's nightcap as Camilo Pascual and Darold Knowles mowed down the Yanks with homer help from Fred Valentine, Ed Stroud and Bernie Allen.

Krausse not only won for the first time in his home park after four defeats but hit a key two-run double in the second inning. The A's pounded 13 hits, including Sal Bando's third homer as the Red Sox absorbed their fifth loss in the last six games.

Jim Northrup drove in three runs with a homer, single and sacrifice fly to pace Detroit's triumph over California. Bill Freehan also had a homer and run-scoring single as the first-place Tigers maintained their 1½-game lead over Baltimore.

The Orioles kept pace as Dave Leonard fired a two-hitter at the White Sox, who have lost seven of their last eight games.

Baltimore, which has won seven of eight, scored three times in the third inning off Bob Priddy on one hit and five walks.

Cleveland jumped back into third place by a half-game over Minnesota. Sam McDowell hurled a four-hitter and fanned 10 Twins. Tony Horton drove in all the Indian runs with a first-inning single and a two-run homer in the third.

Move to Third Round
PARIS (AP) — Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., and Rosemary Casals of San Francisco defeated their amateur opponents Thursday and moved into the third round of the French Tennis Championships.

Senior Babe Ruth Tryouts Saturday

week I hit the ball out of the infield," Shannon grinned. "That was a feat in itself."

Shannon admittedly had been hitting horribly lately and he said he just finally decided to relax.

"I think the fact that me, Cepeda and McCarver were all going bad added to the pressure," Shannon explained. "If one of us was going bad, we knew the other would pick us up. But all of us going bad at the same time made it worse."

The Cardinals start a road trip with a game tonight against the New York Mets. Larry Jaster (2-2) will face the Mets Tom Seaver (2-4).

Batters Fill Order To Boost Cardinals

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The trouble with the St. Louis Cardinals hitters is that nobody is telling them what to do—that is until Steve Carlton opened his mouth.

Carlton, the Cardinals' rangy left-hander, won his fourth straight game and boosted his record to 6-1 by blanking the San Francisco Giants 6-0 Thursday night. It was his third shutout of the season.

"I put my order in early," Carlton grinned. "I told Lou (Brock), Mike (Shannon), Curt (Flood) and Charley (Orlando Cepeda) that I wanted six runs. Carlton figured he needed them, because he had an 0-4 career record against the Giants going into the game.

"It took me three years to beat them and I finally got them," Carlton said. "That's what counts. 'I can't really tell you much about the Giants, because I usually don't last too long against them.'"

Carlton got the bulk of the runs in the first inning when Shannon and Tim McCarver whacked successive homers. Shannon's seventh homer of the year came with Cepeda on base.

Cepeda had knocked in Julian Javier with the first run. Then McCarver cracked his third homer and loser Ray Sadecki, 6-5, went to the showers.

The Cards added a pair off Lindy McDaniel in the seventh when Brock singled and Javier tripled him home. Javier scored on Flood's single.

Carlton pitched his way out of trouble. In the fifth inning, Carlton let the first two men reach base and got one out on a foul out. Then Ron Hunt triggered a line drive to left-center that sent Brock scurrying to the wall for the catch.

"I was really scared in that inning," Carlton said. "Because that's the inning they put up the big W (for win) for a pitcher. And I saw some guys on the bench loosening up their arms and I thought Hunt's ball was going out."

"That was the first time in a

Victory Does Not End Feud

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — The noisy victory of Bobby Unser's piston-pounding Offy racer has done nothing to silence the 500-mile feud over the colorful and controversial turbines.

Unser won the 1968 war of automobile vs. aircraft engines Thursday, driving to victory in the Indianapolis 500-mile race when leader Joe Leonard stalled his jet-powered turbine in the last nine laps.

But Unser insisted the turbines were powerful enough to have run away with the race whenever they wished. He renewed the year-long argument that the jets should be grounded in the rich Memorial Day classic.

"I think this is a race for automotive vehicles," Unser said. "You should put the turbines in a class all by themselves and let them run their own race on some other day."

The crowd of 250,000 expected the flaming red jet cars to run their own race Thursday all by themselves at the head of the 500-mile field. But Unser astounded all.

The 34-year-old Albuquerque, N.M., driver swept past pacesetter Leonard on the eighth lap. He led in 127 of the 200 laps around the 2½-mile oval.

But Unser argued, "I really feel the turbines should have run away with the race. I think I was lucky to win. Leonard could have out run me any time."

He suggested the turbines were running at less than full speed to avoid the strain that sidelined apparent winner Parnelli Jones only three laps from victory a year ago, the first year a turbine was entered. Unser said the turbine strategy was aimed evidently at wearing out the other cars—and it almost succeeded.

Unser said, "I feel the turbines missed the best chance they had in their lives. If they ever had an advantage, it was today ... The best I can figure, the good Lord just didn't want them to win."

Large Crowd Turns Out At Sportsman's Speedway

Racing at Sportsman's Speedway, Marshall, was resumed Wednesday night with an open house, attended by an exceptionally large crowd and a big field of racing cars. The field had 33 class A cars, 26 class B cars and nine semi-late model stock cars.

J. J. Lyle of Warrensburg qualified both a Class A and Class B car and four sets of brothers also qualified cars: Roy Hibbard of Marshall and Russell of Slater; Bob and Ken Williams, of Kansas City; David and Don Brown both of Marshall; Ernie and Dick Buso, Sedalia, Dick was formerly of Sedalia now in Kansas City.

The fastest 20 cars were qualified for the "A" and "B" feature races.

Bobby Ward, Conway, Ark., fastest "A" time of :16.67; J.J. Lyle, fastest for the "B" trials of :17.65; and Larry Gilbert, Marshall, fastest in semi-late stocks of :19.62.

"B" Trophy dash — 4-laps — Short Ackers, Windsor, first; Eddie Gray, Jefferson City, second; J.J. Lyle, third; and George Lasoski, Dover, fourth. Time 1:10.83.

"A" Trophy dash — 4-laps — Eddie Leavitt, Kansas City, first; Roy Hibbard, second; Bobby Ward, third; and J.J. Lyle, fourth. Time 1:07.90.

Semi-Late Model Stock Cars — 10-lap dash — Ralph Bowen, Marshall, first; Bob Shoemaker, Marshall, second; Larry Gilbert, third; Walt Kimberling, Gilliam, fourth. Time 3:29.43.

"B" Heat — 8-laps — Don Brown, Marshall, first; Gene Markes, Marshall, second; Jack Baslee, Boonville, third; Mike Sterling, Tipton, fourth. No time, restarts. In the race Everett Read, Independence, rolled several times while not in other traffic entering the number one turn on the fifth lap. Taken to the Fitzgibbon hospital and admitted for observation. He was attended by Dr. Donald McCoy of Marshall.

First "A" Heat — 8-laps — Ken Harper, Carrollton, first; Russell Hibbard, Slater, second; Ernie Buso, Sedalia, third; and Gene Gennetten, Kansas City, fourth. Time 2:17.47.

Second "B" Heat Race — 8-laps — Dave Ferguson, Odessa, first; "Flea" Atkins, Holt Summit, second; Jack Hunt, Windsor, third; and Don Cooper, Sedalia, fourth. Time 2:24.32. It was a scrap the entire race for positions.

Second "A" Heat Race — 8-laps — "Tiger" Bob Williams, first; Jim Jenkins, Gilliam, second; Bobby Ward, third; and J.J. Lyle, fourth. Time 2:17.96.

In this race Roy Cary, Boonville, was unable to start his car and dropped out, the position was taken by a car driven by Ron Platt, Kansas City. The car had been time-in by Jerry Weld, Kansas City, who became ill and had to leave the track.

Williams is the defending champion of the Missouri State Fair Super-Modified races. He staved off a challenge by Jenkins in the event.

Second Semi-Late Model Stock Car Race — 10-laps — Bob Shoemaker, first; Larry Gilbert, second; Ralph Bowen, fourth; and Walt Kimberling, fourth. No time, restarts.

"B" Feature — 20-laps — Shorty Acker, first; Donnie Cooper, second; Dave Ferguson, third; George Lasoski, fourth; Dick Buso, fifth; Mike Sterling, sixth; Dick Baslee, Boonville seventh; and Donald Brown, eighth. No time, due to restarts. Cooper chased Acker all the way through heavy traffic, but was never able to take a lead.

"A" Feature — 20-laps — Bobby Ward, first; Roy Hibbard, second; Jim Jenkins, third; J.J. Cooper, fourth; Ken Harper, fifth; Craig Hitchcock, Kansas City, sixth; Al Murie, Kansas City, seventh; Marvin Gibson, Sedalia, eighth; and Ken Williams, ninth. No time, restarts.

In an early lap of the race Bobby Ward turned one lap in :16.38 seconds, close to the record which had been set by Bill Utz of Sedalia which stands at :16.23. Ernie Buso blew his engine about midway of the race.

The Sportsman Speedway now returns to its regular schedule of racing which is every Sunday night. A race is scheduled for this Sunday, it was announced.

Red Wing Top Trap Shooters

The Red Wing team in the weekly Sedalia Rod and Gun Club Wednesday League trap shooting went leads the other 10 teams after the second week of shooting. The leaders are five points ahead of the Farmers and Merchants Bank of Green Ridge in second place having 193 to 188.

LeRoy's Steak House, the league champions in 1967 are down in sixth place with 177.

Teams and their points: Red Wing 193, Farmers and Merchants Bank 188, Vic's Package Store 184, Cash Hardware Stores and Ray's Skelly Service tied with 180, S and M Athletic Stores and State Fair Restaurant tied with 179, LeRoy's Steak House 177, Central Mo. Real Estate 174, Third National Bank 170, Bill and Marcia's Cafe 162.

High Scores for the night were Bernard Dove, Green Ridge, Larry Moore, Smithton, Fred Nuzum and Dick Hinshaw, of Sedalia all had 24 out of 25. Dick Hinshaw, Sedalia; Bill Nichols, Clinton; Paul Brownfield and Richard Arnett, Green Ridge; each had 23's.

Red Wing Pest Control broke the high team score with 103 out of a possible 125 and LeRoy's were close with 101 out of 125.

Cleaning and Polishing Gives Pearls New Look

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I want to tell Marguerita that when my pearls look dull I just roll them in cornstarch, then buff and polish with a soft cloth.—DOROTHY

DEAR POLLY—Do tell Marguerita that I use a soft brush and ammonia to whiten my pearl jewelry. Just give it a brisk scrubbing, then rinse thoroughly. You may have to repeat but the ammonia does not affect the metal parts. I clean my rings and other jewelry the same way.—MRS. T. H.

DEAR GIRLS—I am assuming Marguerita was referring to pearls in inexpensive costume jewelry. Mrs. T. H.'s Pointer certainly improved the appearance of some very cheap pearl earrings but I prefer using Dorothy's Pointer for cultured pearls.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—Those who like to use bath oil but prefer taking a shower might like to know the way I manage this. I take my shower, pour a small amount of bath oil in the palm of my hand, rub it all over my body and then step back under the shower. Towel dry and you have bath oil with a shower.—ELODIE

DEAR POLLY—Tack a small, square plastic freezer container to the inside of a kitchen cupboard door. This makes a handy holder for all those hard-to-store envelopes of mixes for soups, salad dressings and fruit drinks.—MRS. E. D.

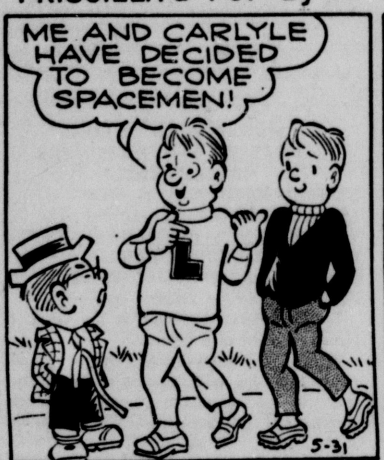

DEAR POLLY—No matter what kind of coffee one uses I believe the stem in the percolator should be cleaned. This morning I was about to throw away a stay (about six inches long) that had come out of my girdle. I found it was great for cleaning out the percolator stem. I also had a fairly narrow piece of nylon net, long but not over three inches wide, so I poked it down the stem with the stay, and worked it back and forth with cleanser and a little water. It was amazing what was coating the inside of that stem. Yours for better coffee.—JEANETTE

Highlights of 12 Hours of Activity

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
National League baseball consumed 12 hours, 52 minutes on Memorial Day from the time the first pitch was thrown at Pittsburgh until the last out was recorded at St. Louis.
In between, some interesting things happened.
—Like the St. Louis Cardinals scoring six runs—their highest total in three weeks.
—Like the New York Mets sweeping a doubleheader.
—Like Bob Aspromonte driving in two runs on a force out.
—Like Ed Kranepool driving in two runs.

The Cards, locked in a hitting slump that dumped them to fourth place with 11 losses in 13 games, woke up with a 6-0 victory over San Francisco. Houston battered Atlanta 11-0, New York swept a twinbill that started in mid-morning from Pittsburgh 6-3 and 5-4, and Los Angeles dropped Cincinnati 5-3. Chicago's game at Philadelphia was rained out.

In the American League, Cleveland dropped Minnesota 3-1, Oakland whipped Boston 6-2, Detroit defeated California 7-3, Baltimore shut out Chicago 5-0 and New York split a doubleheader with Washington, winning 13-4 before losing 5-2.

Thirteen doubleheaders had come and gone since the Mets last swept one. But the ingredients were right Thursday.

First, the opponents were the Pirates, victims of the last Met sweep back in August, 1967. Then there was the bizarre 10:30 a.m. starting time. And then, perhaps most startling, there was Kranepool driving in two runs.

Kranepool had been up 95 times without an RBI this season. The Pirates were so confident they could handle Ed that they walked rookie Kevin Collins intentionally, loading the bases in the third inning of the first game.

But Kranepool singled for two runs and New York was on its way to the victory—eighth in 10 decisions for rookie Jerry Koosman.
The Mets completed the sweep for Dick Selma's fourth consecutive victory. New York scored all its runs with two out in the fifth inning—a rally started, appropriately enough, by Don Bosch's first hit of the year.
Houston had almost as much fun against the Braves, collecting 15 hits—three each and three RBI apiece by ex-Braves Denis Menke and Lee Thomas.
Aspromonte also had three runs batted in and two of them came in a most interesting fashion.

The bases were loaded in the eighth inning when Aspro lined to center. Rusty Staub at third and Lee Thomas at second took off but Jim Wynn, thinking the ball would be caught, held up at first.
Felipe Alou trapped the ball and Staub and Thomas scored but Wynn was cut down at second for the out. Two RBI, one force play.

Mike Cuellar went the distance for the Astros, scattering seven hits.
The Cardinals busted loose in the first inning against the Giants with consecutive home runs by Mike Shannon and Tim McCarver keying a four-run rally.

That was plenty for Steve Carlton, who breezed to his sixth victory of the season and first ever over San Francisco. The four-run single-inning flurry matched the Cards' total production in all but two games this month and the six runs were the most they managed in any game since May 4.

Los Angeles played 13 hits and 10 walks to its victory over the Reds with Claude Osteen getting the victory.

Referee, as Usual, Is Blamed by Fans

KANSAS CITY (AP)—“That’s what happens when they start retribution,” said referee Larry King Thursday night after the Kansas City Spurs soccer team and the Scottish champion Dunfermline Athletic Club fought to a 1-1 draw.

The game was marked by a free-for-all involving at least a dozen players and by numerous injuries. Two players were ejected.

“They simply became more interested in kicking each other than the ball,” King said. “But what happens? The fans boo the referee.”

The fired-up Spurs were determined to prove to the crowd of 10,507 and the rest of the soccer world that the North American Soccer League is as good as Europe’s best. For almost a half, it was a tremendous game, and the excellent play continued most of the time after the rough stuff started.

“I’ve been playing since I was this high,” said 29-year-old Joe Haverty of Ireland, a forward for Kansas City. “But this is the best game I’ve ever been in.” Dunfermline players and coaches refused comment.

The score was 1-1 with 2:05 left in the half when Manfred Rummel of the Spurs was injured and time was called. He was taken to a hospital for a gash on the leg and replaced by Chicago’s Willy Roy.

Four more times in the next 28:36, time was called with an injured Kansas City player on the ground. First Ernie Winchester hobbled off, to return later. Then Roy was hurt twice, but stayed in after treatment. Finally, Gerrit Borghuis of Amsterdam, Holland, was hurt and stayed in.

This seemed to infuriate his countryman, Bertus Hoogerman, and the big Kansas City goalie lost his temper 39 seconds later when a foul was called on Barrie Mitchell. Hoogerman kicked Mitchell, bumped another man off his feet, and swung both fists at two other men.

George Farm, Dunfermline manager, jumped on top of Hoogerman, and both benches emptied for five minutes of brawling. Hoogerman was ejected and Al Kaczmarek, Spurs general manager, charged back and forth across the field protesting the ejection. Fans chanted “We want a goalie.”

Finally, Mike Grbic, veteran fullback, took over as goalie. After the brawl, time was called three more times in the remaining 18 minutes for injuries and Mitchell was ejected with 6:19 left.

Oh yes, Gerd Wiedemeier of Kansas City banked home a 20-foot goal, the ball hitting the right upright, with 37:32 gone after a deflection by Eric Barber. Just 3:06 later, Wiedemeier’s foul gave Ian Lister a penalty kick for the 1-1 tie. Goalie Bent Martin of Scotland had two great saves for Scotland and all five in the game by both teams.

Miles Finds New Love At An 'Old' Age

ATLANTA (AP)—Eldridge Miles is a versatile Texan who has fallen in love with the pro golf tour at the age of 34.

Miles is determined to succeed despite his late start.

“I felt I just had to go on the tour,” the former Dallas school teacher and stock broker said after a three-under-par 69 in the first round of the Atlanta Classic Golf Tournament Thursday.

That left him only a stroke off the lead taken by lanky Tom Weiskopf.

Miles’ best showing has been a tie for ninth, and he has collected about $4,000 in tournament checks.

The lack of tour experience didn’t hurt him on the tough Atlanta Country Club course, however, because he was one of only 16 players to break par of 72.

Only Weiskopf—who has won $85,000 already this year—beat him. Jack Nicklaus, Tommy Aaron, Ray Floyd, Chris Blocker, Bert Yancey and Don January matched Miles’ 69.

Among those overshadowed by the personable Texan were Arnold Palmer, 76; defending champion Bob Charles, 75; Gary Player, 73; Doug Sanders, 75; Masters champion Bob Goalby, 77, and Gay Brewer, 72.

SAFE ALL AROUND
ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—The St. Louis Hawks each year send questionnaires to hundreds of college basketball players who might be drafted by the National Basketball Association.

One of the questions asks the recipient to mention anything that might make it unnecessary for him to go into the military service. In reply to this question, one boy said: “Bad hearing, fallen arches and a real bad back.”

General Manager Marty Blake commented: “That might make him safe from the Army, but it also makes him safe from the NBA.”

250-MILE BOAT RACE SET
NEW YORK (AP)—The Long Island Marathon will be called the New York Grand Prix this year and only boats 20 feet in length or larger will be permitted to compete. The race is set for July 17.

The same course used for the Long Island Marathon will be used. There will be a 15-mile parade through the East river, followed by a 250-mile race from the Verrazano-Narrows bridge. The boats will head east to Montauk Point then return west on Long Island Sound and finish at The World’s Fair Marina in Flushing Bay.

Forward Pass Faces Tough New Obstacles

NEW YORK (AP)—A grueling 1½ miles and eight colts—these are the obstacles Forward Pass must conquer Saturday to win the Belmont Stakes and become the first Triple Crown winner since 1948.

The Calumet Farm colt’s march on the Triple Crown was launched when he was placed first in the Kentucky Derby after Dancer’s Image was disqualified, and was kept alive when he romped to victory in the Praksess.

His main competition in the 100th running of the Belmont is expected to be Mrs. Adele Rand’s Call Me Prince and Greenreese Stable’s Stage Door Johnny.

If all nine start, the gross purse will be $161,450, with $117,700 to the winner, equaling the high for the race established in 1966 when Amherst won.

Post time will be approximately 5:30 p.m., EDT, with national television coverage by CBS from 5 p.m.-5:45 p.m.

The Belmont overshadows the feature races at other tracks Saturday. The Milady Handicap is scheduled for Hollywood Park, the Olympia Handicap at Arlington, the Miss Woodford Stakes at Monmouth, the Pacifica Stakes at Golden Gate and the Hannah Dustin Stakes at Suffolk Downs.

Cincinnati Wins Its Second Title

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Cincinnati won its second straight Missouri Valley Conference all-sports championship, edging Bradley by three points, although Drake won the most team titles.

Cincy won only the swimming crown, but finished third in basketball, cross-country, football and golf. The Bearcats were never lower than fifth in any sport.

The final standings, with the low score winning, showed Cincy with 36½, Bradley 39½, Wichita 43, Louisville 44, Drake and North Texas 50 each; Memphis State 52, Tulsa 57½ and St. Louis 71½.

Drake won three titles—cross country, indoor track and outdoor track. North Texas took the football and golf crowns, Louisville won the basketball title and Memphis State the gymnastics title. The 10 team titles were divided among six teams in the nine-team conference.

Baseball Attendance Down on Holiday

Baseball attendance was down in both the National and American Leagues for Memorial Day attractions.

A total of 167,714 fans saw games across the country with the largest crowd at New York where 28,197 watched the Yankees split a holiday doubleheader with Washington.

Last year seven doubleheaders helped attract 285,918 fans. This year there were only two twinbills—the one at New York and a novel morning doubleheader at Pittsburgh between the Pirates and New York Mets which attracted 19,779.

Easy Victory

BELMONT, N.Y. (AP)—In Reality moved easily through the stretch for a 1¼-length victory over Advocate in Belmont’s Metropolitan Handicap Thursday.

Navy Big Gun Sights in on Childhood Dental Problems

ADMIRAL KYES CHECKING A PATIENT at Bethesda Naval Hospital Dental Clinic. The Navy's preventive dentistry program bears down heavily on early care and stannous fluoride treatment of the teeth.

WASHINGTON—(N E A)—Few children will go to the dentist joyfully. But for one group there's the interesting distraction of knowing that the white-jacketed man saying, "Open wide, please," is an honest-to-goodness, active duty U.S. Navy admiral.

The one-upmanship kids who can boast "MY dentist is an admiral," are part of an all-out naval battle to promote and expedite dental health for every citizen of this country. Children, in fact, under the strategic designation of "Operation Captain Kid," are a major concern of the Dental Division of the U.S. Navy's Bureau of Medicine and Surgery.

It may seem curious for the Navy to take such an interest in moppets much too young to recruit. But the basic purpose makes good sense. Preventive dentistry begun at an early age means fewer dental problems in adulthood, an ultimate saving in man-hours for the Navy, money for the taxpayer.

Rear Admiral Frank M. Kyes, chief of the Navy's Dental Division, said, "As Navy men, our objective is to have each individual joining the service give us far fewer dental problems.

"As dentists, we are bearing down on preventive dentistry for the benefit of every child and adult in this country. You might say our aim is to ultimately put ourselves out of business."

The Navy's emphasis on dental health stems from World War II when 47 per cent of the men rejected by the armed forces were disqualified because they could not meet simple dental standards.

The Dental Division offers its services to all Naval and Marine personnel and their dependents, including 800,000 children. Admiral Kyes drops in on the Saturday clinic in Bethesda, Md., to check some of the youngsters himself. All of the kids have had the benefit of the Navy's triple fluoride approach to stopping tooth decay. This consists of an annual cleaning with a paste containing stannous fluoride, a topical application of stannous fluoride and brushing regularly after every meal or soft drink with a stannous fluoride toothpaste.

The base schools provide every child with a Preventive Dentistry Care Kit consisting of a toothbrush, a tube of stannous fluoride toothpaste and red disclosing tablets which, when chewed after brushing, will stain red the areas the toothbrush didn't reach.

The program has proved so successful in reducing tooth decay that Admiral Kyes and his staff are convinced it should be offered in every public school. The admiral believes that the schools must protect the children's dental health where the parents fail.

"An annual fluoride treatment program run by the schools will cost parents and community less in the long run," he said. "In our experience such a program is not expensive for the excellent results achieved. It averages about 40 cents per year per child in the Navy and should be no more than a dollar per year per child in civilian schools. Actually, the major part of the expense is providing the child with a toothbrush. In some areas you'd be surprised how many children don't own a proper brush."

Captain Frank Grossman, head of Preventive Dentistry in the Dental Division, adds some illuminating reasons for early care of the teeth.

"Although baby teeth fall out, they need good care so that they are not lost before the erupting second teeth force them out naturally. Neglect of baby teeth can cause loss of gum tissue and proper spacing which, in turn, causes malocclusion (bad bite). One out of five children has severe malocclusion but only 11 per cent of these get treated."

Grossman added, "If the water in your area is fluoridated, and 70 million people in the United States have this advantage, see that your child does drink water. Frozen fruit juice, since it is mixed with water, is one way to insure this. The fluoride content of the water is controlled so exactly that there is no question of absorbing too much."

Not content just to rest on the laurels of their present advances, the Navy, along with Notre Dame University and the National Institute of Health, is forging ahead towards a special vaccine to eliminate cavities and decay entirely. But even when this tremendous advance becomes a reality, dentists agree that fluoride will never lose its importance to the looks of the teeth and the supporting bone structure.

Meanwhile, naval personnel will continue to be prodded into keeping up their dental health with a printed reminder soon to be included where they can't miss seeing it—in their pay envelopes.

Youth Is Credited With Saving Life in Mishap

Alva E. Holland, 40, of Kansas City, North, was seriously injured in a boating accident on the Lake of the Ozarks near Cold Turkey Acres about 10:45 p.m. Thursday. Holland was thrown from his own boat and struck by the propeller of the boat.

His life was probably saved by the action of 16-year-old Lee Robison, son of Mr. and Mrs. W.R. Robison, owners of the resort. The boy jumped into the lake and got Holland back in the boat. He then returned him to the resort.

According to the youth, he had accompanied Holland to Lakeside Estates with some friends who had been visiting at the Cold Turkey Resort and they were on the way back. Reaching the main channel of the lake, the boat struck an object and threw Holland against the throttle, knocking it wide open and tipping Holland out. The boy said he was thrown down in the boat and partially dazed and when he came to he saw Holland was missing and the boat was going around in a circle. He shut the motor off. Robison said he heard Holland in the water some distance away, jumped in and rescued him.

"I don't know how I did it, as it was dark and we had no lights," the youth said.

According to the boy's father, the water was running about 15 miles per hour in the channel. "It was a miracle how they got back to the boat," he said.

Robison, on hearing the boy's call for help, hurried to the boat dock, where he applied a tourniquet to Holland's leg and called an ambulance. Bothwell hospital was notified to have a doctor on hand.

The propeller severely injured Holland's left leg. The two lower bones below the knee and the bone above the knee were fractured, and the knee itself was literally cut in two.

Dr. Elliott Braverman operated from 12:45 a.m. until 3:30 a.m. Friday. He reported Holland's condition good, but the injury serious. Holland was admitted to the hospital.

The Robison boy complained of bruises of the left shoulder and arm, apparently received when he was thrown down in the boat.

Plans New Appeal To Reds

PARIS (AP) — U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman planned to appeal again to Ambassador Xuan Thuy of North Vietnam today to end the propaganda battle of the Paris peace talks and negotiate on ways of scaling down the Vietnam war.

Harriman held little hope of early success. North Vietnam is pressing its campaign to compel the United States to stop the rest of the bombing and shelling of its territory, and the U.S. government is adamantly refusing unless North Vietnam reduces infiltration into the South.

U.S. officials say privately that they hope the impasse can be broken eventually. And while the North Vietnamese are saying the United States would be to blame for any future failure of the talks, they are carefully avoiding any threat to walk out.

Cyrus R. Vance, Harriman's deputy, has reported on the state of the talks to President Johnson and evidently been told that Johnson's policy is to keep trying. Vance flew to Washington Monday and is expected back this weekend.

While the talks have been in recess since Monday, the battle of words has continued.

North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong said Thursday his government would not accept "any conditions or any reciprocity" in order to bring an end to U.S. attacks.

At his ranch in Texas, Johnson told a news conference: "We shall continue to do everything we know how to do to bring peace to the world." He said he is "ready to go far and fast" toward peace in Vietnam if North Vietnam will do the same.

Impeachment proceedings are brought by the U.S. House of Representatives.

Silo 'Inmates' Work for Degrees

By DOUGLAS KIENITZ
Associated Press Writer

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — The men who are prepared to launch the nation's Minuteman missiles at a second's notice have a lot of time on their hands during a 24-hour shift in a silo, 50 feet underground and miles from their missile.

But do they waste it? Well about 150 officers and men at Warren Air Force Base are working toward college degrees as they sit and wait for an order they hope never comes.

Their military job is simple. Should the word be given, they would press the button to launch the missiles toward predetermined targets in various sectors of the world.

Two men at a time pull 24-hour stints in their underground homes, with one constantly monitoring the intricate apparatus and both participating in drills held continually to keep the operation alert. But time is also available for study and about 150 are currently enrolled in the Air Force Institute of Technology education program —AFTT.

mathematics and industrial management.

Such a program guarantees a bachelor's degree for the officers who entered the military under cadet programs. It appears to be a successful venture, both for the men involved and the Air Force. Professors from the University of Wyoming in Laramie conduct classes on the average of three times every two weeks at Warren AFB, with the remainder of the time devoted to private study which is usually done in the launch facility.

After enough college credit hours have been obtained to bring the student within one year of graduation, the final time must be spent on a college campus. The largest number plan to continue their schooling at the University of Wyoming, but several will go to San Diego State in California and the University of Oklahoma.

The most common courses being studied are general engineering, electrical engineering,

Hold Moniteau CROP Meeting For Training

Rev. Cecil Swinehart, Moniteau County CROP chairman conducted a planning and training meeting for the County CROP committee and area supervisors on May 23.

The campaign director for the 1968 CROP Campaign in Moniteau County is Leslie McKee. The 1968 campaign is to center on the theme: "More Than Food!" This motto will emphasize the fact that CROP not only sends food to starving people in over 50 countries; but also fights the root causes of hunger. Fighting the root causes of hunger means that CROP works to help people grow their own food. CROP does this by aiding with the digging of wells, the building of irrigation ditches, the reclaiming of land as well as supplying seed and fertilizer, so that people can grow their own food.

Other members of the CROP committee are: Vice-chairman, Mr. H. F. Scheuer; Secretary, Bill Riley; treasurer, B.G. Maier; publicity director, Rev. Keith Kihne; promotion director, Dan McGrath; community director, Charley Barry and Rev. Marvin Kirchoff, board members.

The committee met with the following area supervisors: Hugh Alexander and Leonard Wallenmeyer, Jamestown; Art Huffendick, David Calhoun, Arthur Hagemeyer, and John Crane, California. The committee, area supervisors, and team captains will meet again in July.

Soybean Loan Cutoff Date Set

Farmers were reminded today that price-support loans on their 1967-crop soybeans will be available until the end of June.

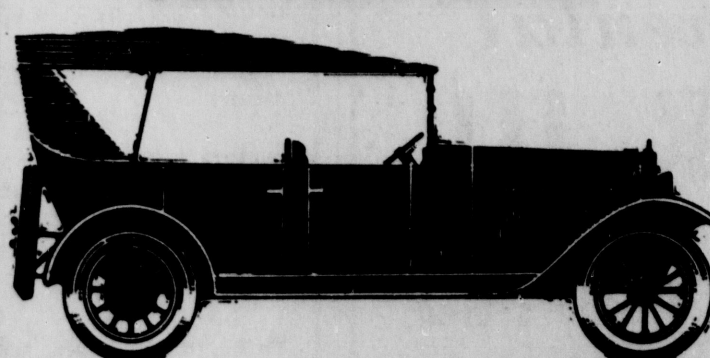

Samuel Hieronymus, Chairman, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee, said that such loans may be requested until June 30; maturity date for the loans is July 31. The loan maturity date may be extended for soybeans stored under loan provided the extension is requested by the original loan maturity date. Producers with soybeans stored under loan on farms may have the maturity date extended if this is requested within 60 days after the original loan maturity date. The support level for the 1967 crop of soybeans in Pettis County is $2.46 per bushel. This is based on a National average loan rate of $2.50 per bushel. Premiums and discounts are the same as for the 1966 crop.

Producers may receive price support on their 1967 crop through loans on either warehouse or farm-stored soybeans and through purchases.

French Republic Shaky

PARIS (AP) — A foreigner in Paris gets the feeling he is watching the Fifth Republic die. If it is dying, it is doing so in an outlandish way, but almost everything in France these days seems a bit outlandish, including the way this disaster began from the angry protests of a handful of students in a Paris suburb.

The odds seem to be increasing against the political survival of 77-year-old President Charles de Gaulle, who ruled in lofty majesty for the 10 years of the Fifth Republic.

If he does not survive this crisis, it could remain to the Communist party to pick up the pieces, though it is considered highly unlikely that the Communists can achieve full power in France. Ironically, if De Gaulle does survive, it could be because of the help of the Communist party.

With its command of the most powerful labor organization, the General Confederation of Labor—CGT—the party had been in the position in the past of being able to seriously cripple this country by calling out the key unions.

Now, if any group can unparalyze the country, it may be the Communist party, if it has the will—and still has the authority—to order those same key unions back to work. There are 1.25 million CGT members, and about 8 million to 10 million persons are on strike, but the important unions could get the country moving again.

France seems close to coming to a complete halt, now that gasoline supplies are running low.

In the midst of all the turmoil in Paris, the Americans and North Vietnamese carry on what are loosely called peace talks, operating in their own vacuum sealed off from the French storm.

Oddly there is a link between France's troubles—which may yet become a contagion in Europe—and the Americans' troubles with the war in Vietnam.

It was a rally against the Vietnam war last March in Paris which provided a spark—on a (See FRENCH, Page 4)

Reds Continue Fighting On an Increased Scale

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Marines hurled back big North Vietnamese attacks in the far north and inflicted heavy casualties, the U.S. Command reported Wednesday. But fighting died down in suburban Saigon for the first time in nearly a week.

The northern battles appeared to be a direct result of heavy infiltration of North Vietnamese across the demilitarized zone since the start of peace talks in Paris, U.S. commanders said.

"The war has intensified, but they (the enemy) are not doing well militarily," Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. commander in Vietnam, told reporters before leaving for South Korea en route to Washington. "They've had no military victories."

The sharpest enemy attacks in the north came near Khe Sanh, the western anchor of the Marine and South Vietnamese defense line running along the demilitarized zone between the Vietnams.

About 400 North Vietnamese charged the Marine lines two miles southeast of Khe Sanh under cover of a heavy artillery barrage Tuesday, hurling grenades and satchel charges of explosives.

Beaten back, the North Vietnamese regrouped and attacked again. This time U.S. helicopter gunships joined the battle and U.S. tanks and 200 Marine reinforcements came up.

Then the enemy retreated under cover of artillery fire and the Marines reported killing 230 North Vietnamese while suffering casualties of 13 dead and 44 wounded.

The Marines reported killing 230 North Vietnamese while suffering casualties of 13 dead and 44 wounded.

At the eastern end of the zone, Marines engaged troops of the 320th North Vietnamese Division for the fifth straight day just north of Dong Ha. The Marines are trying to drive the North Vietnamese away from the Cua Viet River, an important supply line.

After a day of battle, the Marines reported they killed 34 North Vietnamese. Marine casualties were given as 15 killed and 9 wounded. South Vietnamese claimed they killed 40 North Vietnamese without suffering a casualty in a battle five miles north of Dong Ha.

Since the beginning of May, allied forces have killed more than 3,000 North Vietnamese along the demilitarized zone, a U.S. spokesman said. Reflecting the intensity of the recent fighting, the spokesman reported

Firm Clues Lacking To Submarine Fate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy checked the reported sighting of an orange object in the Atlantic Wednesday but hope for the missing atomic submarine Scorpion and its 99 crewmen flickered lower.

Capt. John F. Davis told newsmen that a seaman aboard a Navy refrigerator ship reported early Tuesday seeing "an orange colored object" about 60 to 80 miles north of the position where there had been a previous report of an oil slick.

This was in the general area of the Scorpion's planned home track toward Norfolk, Va., but when Davis was asked whether the Navy is supposing that the orange object is a buoy, possibly sent up as a sign of distress from the Scorpion, Davis said "we aren't supposing one way or another."

The captain, who was monitoring at the Pentagon the three-day-old search for the Scorpion, said the refrigerator ship Hyades has been ordered to stay in the area and look further while other search vessels come up.

Davis said the crewman who reported seeing the orange colored object "was unable to get anyone else on the ship to see it also, and the search airplane, which at that time was overhead, was unable to pick it up either."

The oil slick was reported to have been seen May 23 about 800 miles west of the last known position of the Scorpion two days earlier.

The orange object was reported seen five days after the oil slick and north of it, Davis said there was a light current to the north in that area.

However, the captain said that the first search airplanes to reach the position of the reported oil slick late Tuesday found no sign of it, nor of anything else.

Liberty Park Memorial Day Concert Set

The Sedalia Concert Band, under the direction of Lloyd Knox, will open the summer concert season at the Liberty Park recreation platform at 8 p.m. Thursday, Memorial Day.

For the first concert the band will offer, prior to the intermission, "Hosts of Freedom March," King; "On The Square," Panella; "Faith of Our Fathers," Hemy; highlights from "Oklahoma," "Them Besses March," Huffine; "Melody of Love," Glazier; Engelmann; highlights from "Kiss Me Kate," Porter; "Lieutenant Santelman's March," Rosenkrans; and "Stars and Stripes Forever," Sousa.

After the intermission the band will offer, "National Emblem March," Bagley; "Abide With Me," "The Thunder March," Sousa; "Oh! You Beautiful Doll," Ayer-Brown; "Kin," Frankiser; "Your Land and My Land," Romberg, and "On The Street March," Connell.

The concert will close with the playing of the National Anthem.

A series of 11 concerts are planned for this season. Musicians for the concert series are furnished by the American Federation of Musicians, Local 22, in cooperation with the Sedalia Park Board.

Building Charged By Poor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shouting "Viva, Viva," a half-dozen angry demonstrators crashed their way into the Supreme Court Wednesday and hurled rocks through the windows of a main floor office.

They were pushed back by four members of the court's special police force and left as a sort of calling card a button that read, "Nosotros venceremos" (we will win).

The violent outbreak came after a group of about 300 from the Poor People's Campaign had assembled on the court steps to protest a court ruling affecting Indian fishing rights in the Northwest.

Rocks broke four windows in the court's file room, shattering shards of glass along the floor, and startled several women employees who fled the room shouting, "They're coming."

There was no indication of any injury.

The demonstrators were dressed in work clothes and several wore bandannas around their necks. One was a young girl.

The police had closed the steel doors of the building shortly after the delegation from the Poor People's Campaign set up what its leader, the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, called a "vigil" on the front steps to protest the fishing ruling.

Women Drown When Boat Overturns

OSAGE BEACH, Mo. (AP) — Two women drowned early today when a fishing boat capsized on the Osage River below Bagnell Dam at Lake of the Ozarks.

The Missouri Highway Patrol identified the victims as Mrs. Ethel I. Moreland, 56, and Mrs. Florence Elrod, 44, both of Belle, Mo.

Officers said the husbands of the two women also were thrown into the water when their boat apparently capsized in swift currents, but the men survived.

The accident occurred about 1:45 a.m. Bodies of the two women were recovered some 30 minutes later about a mile downstream.

California Voting Pivotal For RFK

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, his prestige scarred in his Oregon defeat by Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, laid his deflated Democratic presidential nomination hopes on the line Wednesday in next week's California primary.

Kennedy stopped just short of saying in Los Angeles after a flight from Portland that he would quit the contest if he doesn't win in Tuesday's California balloting.

"I will abide by the results of that test," he said. But he declined to say flatly that he would withdraw if McCarthy defeated him in a ballot box battle in which the politicians generally feel the odds favor the New York Senator.

Kennedy agreed to debate McCarthy, a confrontation the Minnesota Senator has been demanding for weeks. Always before Kennedy had said it would be necessary to include Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey in such an affair.

Before he flew off for full time campaigning in California, McCarthy told reporters he does not think that his Oregon primary victory over Kennedy by a 45-39 percentage vote "necessarily eliminates" the latter from the nomination contest. He called California "a tough state" but promised an all-out battle.

With 2,442 of Oregon's 2,599 precincts counted, the results were McCarthy 147,801, or 45 per cent; Kennedy 128,223, or 39 per cent; President Johnson 40,934, or 12 per cent; and Humphrey (write-in) 10,267, or 3 per cent.

Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon won an overwhelming 73 per cent of the Republican vote. California Gov. Ronald Reagan, on the ballot, got 23 per cent; New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller 4 per cent on a write-in.

McCarthy, happy about the Oregon outcome, said the national polls "still show me to be the strongest candidate" when matched with Republican hopefuls. But he added that "now is no time to be counting delegates. There's a long, hot summer ahead."

Although Kennedy said the California vote would be a fair test of the opposing views of Humphrey, McCarthy and himself, the Vice President again will be an absentee aspirant for the nomination.

Humphrey has disavowed attempts of a delegate slate which supported Johnson before he withdrew to switch its allegiance to him. Kennedy has tabbed Humphrey as his real rival for the nomination.

Asked at a Washington news conference if he felt Kennedy's first-ever defeat in Oregon eliminated him,

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy announced Wednesday night that patrol aircraft flying about 110 miles east of Norfolk, Va., heard a radio message identifying the sender with the code word for the missing atomic submarine Scorpion.

The message said: Any station. This net (network). This (and then the Navy code word for the Scorpion).

The search commander has ordered ships and aircraft to investigate, the Navy said.

The message, picked up at 8:28 p.m. (EDT), was monitored by six other Navy stations and a bearing was obtained to the source of the signal.

inated the New Yorker as a threat to his own nomination. The Vice President retorted: "I never really felt it was a threat."

He declined, however, to say that he believed the nomination is "locked up" for him.

McCarthy said the Oregon results should dispose of suggestions that he might not go all of the way to the Chicago convention. He said they should quiet reports that he might throw his support to Humphrey in the end.

The Minnesota senator made it clear he intends to pursue his low-keyed campaigning, leaning heavily on television appearances to offset the crowd-rousing tactics employed by Kennedy.

McCarthy said he thinks Kennedy probably will run strongly among the racial and national minority voters numerous in California but scarce in Oregon.

Kennedy is expected to bear down in California in his attacks on McCarthy. He virtually ignored his ballot opponent in Oregon, concentrating on Humphrey.

The near-disappearance of the once-potent Vietnam war issue marked the results in Oregon.

Kennedy and McCarthy, who have been critical of Johnson's war policies and skeptical of progress of peace efforts, polled slightly fewer votes than Nixon and Reagan collected in the Republican contest.

Nixon has halted previous de-

Johnson Blasted By Reds

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnamese accused President Johnson Wednesday of speaking "false, hypocritical, and lying words" about the Paris peace talks when he put blame for lack of progress on the North Vietnamese.

Johnson said Hanoi's envoys had been unwilling to enter into "serious, quiet discussions" on conditions for ending the rest of U.S. attacks on North Vietnam.

A North Vietnamese spokesman, Nguyen Thanh Le, told a news conference: "The most recent statements of President Johnson are false, hypocritical, lying words about peace and peace negotiations."

Johnson received a report Tuesday from Ambassador Cyrus R. Vance, who is back in Washington for consultation. Vance is deputy chief of the U.S. delegation under Ambassador W. Averell Harriman.

Le said that after seeing Vance, Johnson issued a statement showing that "the United States still persists in not stopping unconditionally the bombing and all other acts of war against Vietnam and . . . persists in its absurd demand for reciprocity" which North Vietnam has rejected.

Harriman is expected to make a new attempt in the talks here in forthcoming sessions to move the peace talks into secret discussions on deescalation.

Harriman and his advisers think there is little chance of early agreement from Ambassador Xuan Thy of North Vietnam to do this. But they insist private diplomacy will have to be employed if the talks are to make any progress.

President Johnson said in Washington Tuesday that the time has come to get away from "fantasy and propaganda" and into "quiet, serious discussions."

President Explains Position on Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson says he's prepared to keep his peace envoys in Paris for an indefinite period but will not further reduce U.S. bombing of North Vietnam without similar restraint by Hanoi.

Johnson's comments at a Tuesday news conference came after he was briefed on the Paris talks by Cyrus R. Vance, top assistant to chief U.S. negotiator W. Averell Harriman.

Vance also briefed top Congress members, after which Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said he was "not discouraged" about peace prospects. But Mansfield voiced hope "the American people realize this is something that will take weeks and maybe months."

Vance plans to return to the French capital late this week. Johnson said it is time for the Communists "to move from fantasy and propaganda" at the conference table—the North Vietnamese have yet to acknowledge any of their forces are in South Vietnam—and to get down to serious negotiations for a peaceful settlement.

The President reported the enemy is pouring record amounts of men and material into the South and has accelerated attacks since the Paris parley began nearly three weeks ago.

Nevertheless, "we shall continue patiently to see whether the Paris talks shall yield anything in the way of constructive results," Johnson said.

Other sources said Vance and Harriman are gearing for discussions they believe could last through the summer and beyond.

Johnson said the Communists have used the Paris meetings to try to pressure the United States into a complete, one-sided bombing halt of North Vietnam and to peddle propaganda.

Johnson said his March 31 partial cutback in U.S. air attacks ended the bombing raids on 90 per cent of North Vietnam's population and 78 per cent of its territory. The remaining bombing destroys more than 20 per cent of the infiltration flow against the South and saves lives of allied troops, he said.

The President recalled his March 31 offer to further reduce the fighting if Hanoi would "show some similar restraint." He declared this "will remain our position."

Democratic Women Hear a Talk

The 37th anniversary of the Pettis County Women's Democratic Club was observed with a potluck dinner in the cafeteria of Smith-Cotton High School Tuesday night. More than 100 members of the club and visitors attended and heard Rep. James I. Spainhower, Marshall, give the principal talk.

Several proposals to improve Missouri's government were made by Spainhower. He suggested the election of governor and other state officials be changed to the off-years of the national election. It was his contention that the present procedure does not permit sufficient attention to be given to the highly important selection of persons for state positions.

Spainhower also proposed that the State Legislature be updated by annual sessions, including additional secretarial help, more research assistance, and a reduction in the size of the House of Representatives from the present 163 to 100.

"What I am suggesting," he said, "is that state government has become much too complicated and complex for its policies to be determined by part-time legislators who have neither the time nor the professional assistance to make wise decisions."

Spainhower, who is chairman of the Missouri School District Reorganization Commission, also commented briefly on his work with this group. He said that the Commission, whose purpose is to advise the Legislature on how best to proceed with the reorganization of Missouri school districts, feels strongly that reorganization is greatly needed in many outstate areas and in the urban sections of the state to provide quality education for every Missouri boy and girl, regardless of place of residence.

The difficulty of persons of moderate means running political office was discussed by the Saline County representative. Spainhower proposed that some system of governmental financing of political campaigns be explored. "Otherwise," he said, "We may very well reach the point in our nation where only men of substantial financial resources can afford to run for our highest political offices."

Spainhower concluded his address with a suggestion that the constitutional convention be called to consider needed revisions in the state's Constitution. He emphasized especially the unreasonable constitutional restrictions on counties and cities in governing themselves, as changing times require.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Opal Hugelman, Sedalia city collector, who is also president of the Women's club. Mrs. Hugelman also presided over the meeting.

The invocation for the bountiful turkey dinner was sang by Mrs. Robert Seelan, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. D.J. Herndon. Following the dinner they also sang several numbers.

Mrs. Hugelman introduced John Vandekamp, city Democratic chairman, who spoke briefly on the recent city election and said the victory was achieved through the cooperation of everyone, from the committeemen and up through the precinct and ward workers. Vandekamp then introduced the city officials who were present at the dinner, after which the councilmen were excused to attend a

Arrest Warrant Issued For Owner of Building

A city warrant has been issued for the arrest of Charles A. Peters, owner of the rundown Peters Building on West Second, charging him with failure to comply with an order to demolish the building by last January.

The warrant was one result of a public meeting held last night by the City Council to determine the final disposition of the building. Violation of the notice to demolish the building is a misdemeanor calling for a fine of up to $100 and a sentence of up to 30 days in jail, or both.

Peters was reported in Sedalia prior to the hearing, but failed to contact the building and electrical inspector or other city officials. "We would have liked to have talked to him before or during the hearing to find out just what his intentions are concerning the building so we would know how to proceed," Woodrow Garrison, building and electrical inspector, said.

Garrison added that the findings of the hearing are now in the hands of the City Council, which will probably take the matter up in the regular council meeting Monday night. He said the council can order the demolition of the building, and that the owner in this case will have ten days to comply with the order.

At the hearing last night Fire Chief Emmett Vaught testified that the building is a fire hazard due to a collection of cardboard boxes and other debris stored there. "There is a possibility that a fire in the building could endanger all of the businesses in a half-block area," Vaught said.

Garrison said the building is dangerous and a threat to public safety. Robert Cunningham, director of public works and city engineer, said that in his opinion the building in its present condition is dangerous to the public.

Last weekend the upper half of the rear brick wall fell into the alley behind the building. The alley has been closed since last February.

Forgive Wrongs Early

There was a time when a person whose feelings were hurt challenged another to a duel. Readers of history will recall Congressman Pettis, for whom Pettis county was named, became so steamed up over criticism he challenged Major Biddle to shoot it out on a sandbar in the Mississippi river at St. Louis. The men stood five feet apart and blasted away in the heat of anger. Pettis died the next day and Biddle a day later. After the shooting when both men learned they were mortally wounded, they forgave each other. Instead of indulging their animosity and playing at heroics, Pettis and Biddle should have patched up their differences before killing each other, thus permitting each to fill out useful lives in public service.

Why does a man have to be on death's bed before he can forgive real or imaginary wrongs? Forgiveness is just as genuine and timely before an act of vengeance as it is after a tragedy. The ethics of an earlier try at reconciliation should not await the approach of death.

GHS

It may be a little difficult to believe, but the plastics age is 100 years old this year. And it all came about because of a shortage of ivory for billiard balls.

In 1868, a young Albany, N.Y., printer and tinkerer named John Wesley Hyatt decided to see what would happen if he mixed certain chemicals together. The substance he came up with — Celluloid — soon found use in a wide range of products, from dental plates to shirt collars.

It also incidentally created a revolution in photography — the roll film — and made the motion picture industry possible.

The next great development came in 1909, when Dr. Leo Henrik Baekeland invented Bakelite, which could be heat-formed into such practical items as electric iron handles.

Today, the types and varieties of plastics and their uses would take volumes to describe. Since 1946, the plastic industry's output has increased by 1,257 per cent and it employs nearly 200,000 men and women.

So don't say that nothing good ever came out of a poolroom.

Price Gls Pay as Foe Stalls Peace

By DON OAKLEY

Pick up any newspaper anywhere in the country and the headlines are depressingly similar:

"GIs Dying at Record Rate During Peace Talks"—"We Will Talk and Fight Both, LBJ Warns"—"Marines, N. Viets in Fierce Battle"—

More American soldiers were killed in the week immediately preceding and the week coinciding with the start of the Paris talks than in any previous two-week period in the war—more than 1,100, bringing total U.S. battle deaths to over 23,000.

Some Americans may have been able to dismiss the war from their minds, now that U.S. and North Vietnamese representatives are actually meeting with each other. But not the parents and wives of men killed in those two weeks, or being killed this week, or who may be killed in weeks to come.

"Many Americans have been misled into placing too high a value on Vietnam peace talks and expecting 'too much too soon,'" a group of prominent citizens warned recently. The group included, besides numerous religious, educational and business leaders, former President Dwight Eisenhower, former Sen. Paul Douglas of Illinois, James B. Conant, Gen. Omar Bradley and Gen. Lucius Clay.

"There is unmistakable evidence that Ho Chi Minh thinks of negotiations as another way to fight a war—in effect, as another weapons system," they said.

The history of the tortuous negotiations that took place in the midst of the Korean War is classic proof of the truth of this statement.

Eventually, however, the Red Chinese realized that pressure on the battlefield was gaining them nothing at the bargaining table and got down to serious discussion about an armistice. It has not yet dawned on the North Vietnamese that we, no more than they, are not about to give up in Paris that which we have not lost, and do not intend to lose, in the paddies and jungles of South Vietnam.

Thus the insanity continues and the discouraging headlines and heart-breaking casualties repeat themselves week after week.

If there has been no progress in Paris so far, how much can there be as long as one side refuses to agree to the first step toward peace, a mutual scaling down of military activity—indeed, refuses even to admit that a single one of its soldiers is on the soil of South Vietnam?

Those who protested so much against America's involvement in the war are strangely silent now. Those who complained of America's inhumanity are amazingly blind to Hanoi's brutal step-up of the fighting.

This is not to suggest that the war protesters, whether in this country or abroad, should associate themselves for an instant with America's "guilt" or grant that there might be the slightest good thing to say in favor of America's position.

But if they sincerely desire peace, nothing is stopping them from making this desire plain to Hanoi. They never hesitated to convey their moral support in the past.

Vitamins: Pro and Con

"Caution: Vitamin supplements may not be necessary for your health."

The Federal Drug Administration, which has been engaged in a running battle with the vitamin manufacturers, apparently would like to see some such label on every bottle of liver extract or iron pills or whatnot.

Vitamins and minerals are abundant in commonly available foods, maintains the FDA. Except for people with special medical needs, there is no scientific basis for the routine use of supplements. The drug companies admit that this is technically true, but counter that bottled nutrition is still necessary because a lot of people simply don't eat as well as they should, irrespective of their financial status.

They cite a study made by another government agency, the Department of Agriculture, which shows that 50 per cent of the families surveyed had inadequate diets that were below recommended allowances in one or more nutrients.

The situation seems to be deteriorating. A similar study a decade earlier found 40 per cent of American families nutritionally deficient.

So what's a mother to do?

Common sense suggests that the best course is to have regular checkups and to follow the advice of the family physician while the protagonists in the pill controversy fight out the issue among themselves.

Fun Now, Pay Later

This is our idea of a real philanthropist. An anonymous alumnus of Wofford College in Spartanburg, S.C., has set up a loan fund to make sure that no one goes through the college "without having any fun."

The donor got the idea for the fund when he was a senior at Wofford way back in 1939 and couldn't raise the money to rent a tuxedo or buy his girl a corsage for a school dance.

According to the story in the National Observer, all upperclassmen, if they have passing grades and are deemed "worthy and reliable" by college administrators, can borrow up to $50 interest-free to finance dates, fraternity parties, hi-fi equipment or just about anything that will give them enjoyment.

The only stipulation is that they must certify that the money won't be squandered on such things as school fees, room and board or books. The loans are repayable in four months, with a $1 administrative charge.

Affluence Is Intoxicating But---Blessing or Curse?

By BRUCE BISSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

PORTLAND, ORE. (NEA)

To the visitor, Saturday night along Broadway, a downtown Portland street, has to be something else. For hours and hours, cars filled with young people move three and four abreast, bumper to bumper past the shops and movie houses at snail's pace. Most are shiny new, with special exhausts giving off a throaty rumble. Endlessly, drivers gun the engines.

There are few hippies or obvious toughs. The youngsters are smiling, looking, chattering. Banter goes back and forth between cars. The dull roar of engines keeps a constant undertone.

The visitor asks a man strolling Broadway: "Why are they here? What are they doing?"

The answer, with a laugh, is short: "Nothing. They're just out riding."

Surely not unique to Portland, this noisy, moving tableau seemed harmless—and occasionally downright funny. At the same time, it was almost pathetically sad and thought-provoking.

These youngsters, and their parents, have been chasing affluence and they have found it. But now that they have it, they do not really know what to do with it.

Millions of dollars were earned and expended to put that thick stream of cars on the street, in the hands of young people seeking action they probably did not find.

As this nation's goods have multiplied and its incomes have soared, affluence has spread over the land in rising waves. It has become the hallmark and watchword of this society. Visible to all, it has made poverty intolerable.

Even though he must know it will not endure, the looter in a Negro riot is trying for the magic touch of affluence as he runs off with television sets, tape recorders, gadgets galore. No one thinks he should be denied the very best rewards of affluence (like color television) when he can see them everywhere.

Clothes, good food and decent housing are aspects of affluence understandably quested after by the whole world and its three billions. They are what the great upward push from deprivation and despair is all about.

Yet somehow, in this rich land, the symbol of our rising affluence has become the shiny extra, the apurtenance of life, the costly gadget designed to amuse us in our growing free time.

So it is that a rioting looter sometimes risks his life not to take food or clothing but to seize some expensive plaything which many people already well up the ladder of affluence cannot afford to buy.

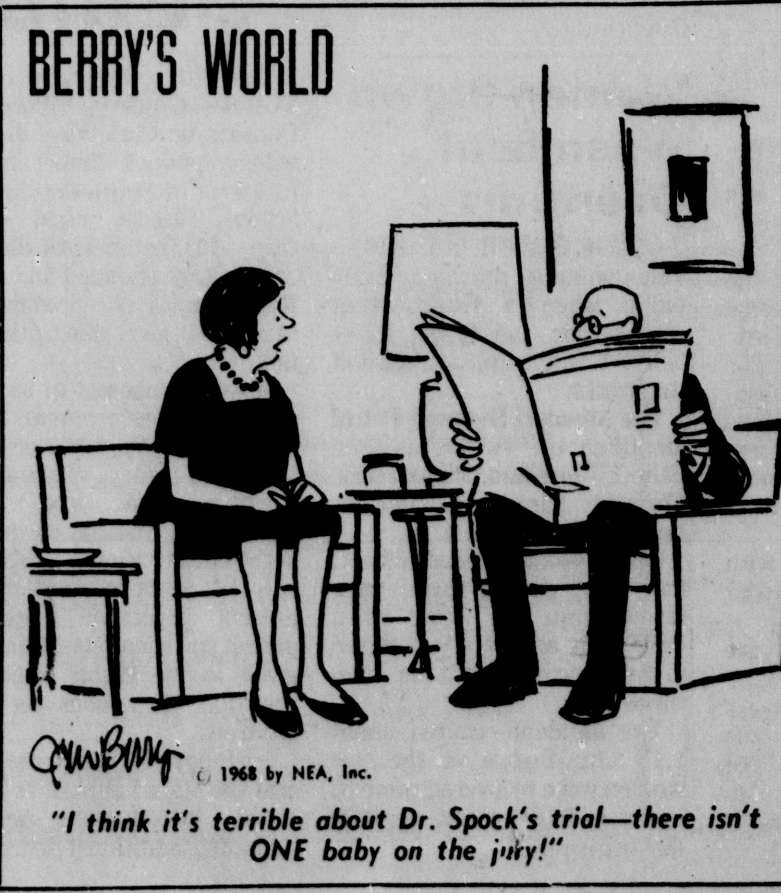

The question therefore arises: Is affluence all blessing, or is it part curse? Are we so enamored of this engulfing tide of material good things that we can think of nothing else?

As never before in this society, money is key because money buys. But, beyond the reasonable level of living sustenance, what is it buying for many people except a Saturday night ride into emptiness?

Many Americans, though obviously far from all, have chased the rainbow of affluence and grasped it. But in the quest too many seem to have concluded that it is some kind of end itself—not just a means to better human understanding and fuller appreciation of human values, and hence to really rich living.

We have seen affluence as the great lifter of despair. We had better not let it become a new plague.

Partner Bid For No Reason

Here is another example of bridge astigmatism which causes a player to overlook the fact that his partner is a living, breathing human being who can make decisions of his own.

North had 15 high card points and a lot of honor cards. He might well have made a two no-trump response. After all, in standard American bidding the two no-trump response shows 13 to 15 points, but North liked his hand.

We have no real quarrel with his three no-trump response. Everyone is entitled to overbid a trifle on occasion.

We have a real quarrel with his five heart bid. North had told his full story and just a little more when he responded three no-trump. His partner had heard this three no-trump call and had chosen to go to four hearts. South wasn't trying for a slam. He just didn't like no-trump and did have two good five card major suits.

East played his ace of clubs on the first trick. He continued by cashing his ace of spades and since there is never any way to eat the ace of trumps, South was down one.

As is so frequently the case, North who was solely responsible for the debacle, blamed South: "Why shouldn't you just let me play in three no-trump? I would have made it."

South replied, "Right, but how could I tell that you had three stoppers in clubs? In any event, you should have passed to four hearts."

South was right. If South were really interested in a slam he could have bid something other than four hearts. It didn't matter, anyway. North had nothing extra to show and no excuse for his five heart bid.

School's Out Gone Is Calm

Anyone with experience has been steeling themselves for the joyous cry, "School's out!" If you haven't been preparing for the inevitable, I can assure you those are the words that shattereth thy nerves and taketh away thy plombl.

It is not just the thought of having the freezer filled with half-eaten Popsicles and the car filled with wet bathing suits for the next few months that bothers me.

It is not the idea of coping with the blizzard of mimeographed slips brought home in order to give mother three extra hours of paperwork and give father's billfold that curious flat look. After all, I have been at this for quite a few years. Today, for example, I quickly filled out slips registering one for a summer geology-conservation course, one for tennis lessons and three for swimming lessons and a reading program. Rick is already registered for Boy Scout camp in New Mexico and Stu and Cissy are on the lists for camp. It did take a bit of fast and fancy calendar work around some recital dates and Stu had to give up a typing course.

"Don't you think you are a bit overorganized?" I asked, as he reluctantly dropped the typing slip into the wastebasket. "Well," he answered, "if I didn't have to spend all winter in school, I could work more important things in."

Agreeing that those hours spent on arithmetic and spelling and history did interfere with his education, I signed everything remaining on the table, including two place-mats and an ice cream dish.

Now, maybe you think it's contemplating those waves after waves of playmates destined to hit the beachhead of my kitchen this summer that disturbs me. No, no. Again, I have experience here and it is not kids with their assorted toys and pets that get to me. I have become adept at answering both the telephone and the back door, sending Nicky Krentzman a home for lunch and sorting through eight pairs of tennis shoes while also making chocolate pudding and at the same time braiding somebody's hair.

Actually, it is not any one of these things that makes me shudder when I think of hearing, "School's out!"

It's ALL of them.

THE WELL CHILD

Protect School Child Against Total Strangers

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

A mother asks about the best way to protect her children against strangers who might harm them. She should impress on them morning, noon and night that they should not accept rides or gifts from strangers. Teach them the old proverb: When someone tries to give you something for nothing, call the police.

A nonprofit organization, Patch the Pony, Inc. (P.O. Box 2156, Florence, Ala. 35630) has an appealing kit consisting of a button and an illustrated brochure that brings this lesson to children in kindergarten and elementary school in a pleasant but forceful way. Although individual kits are available for 25 cents, many Parent-Teachers Associations have found it worth-while to supply kits for the whole school.

Q — Our 10-month-old son is growing normally but has an enlarged, protruding tongue. He also has a very large thymus. Is there any connection?

A — In most children with an enlarged or overgrown tongue the other structures of the mouth catch up with it and the problem disappears. If the condition persists until he is 18 or 20 months old, it may have to be corrected surgically. There is always the danger that the enlarged tongue will push the teeth out of line.

A large thymus in infants and children is normal and is not related to the enlargement of the tongue. No treatment is required.

Q — My son, 10, is slow in school and doesn't like to go. A psychiatrist made tests and said he is just lazy. What do you advise?

A — Poor school performance in a child with a normal IQ is usually due to some physical or emotional disorder. You should make sure his hearing and vision are normal. An electroencephalogram or brain wave test should be made to rule out a mild epilepsy.

Some children, once they have fallen behind, get discouraged and feel hopelessly lost in school. They need special tutoring in one or more subjects to bring them up to the class average. Some children do so poorly because they aren't getting enough sleep or are not getting the proper nourishment. If your doctor can pinpoint the cause of your son's difficulty, he should be able to help you correct it.

Democrat Pickups

Jimmy is two-and-a-half and his mother spends a good deal of time telling him about things. One day she bought two little gold fish in a bowl which she thought he would like to watch. She explained to him about the fish and told him he mustn't touch them, just watch them. A little later she was busy doing something and happened to turn around and saw Jimmy stuffing a bath towel in the fish bowl.

"What are you doing, Jimmy?" she wanted to know.

"The fish are wet," he told her, "I'm drying them off."

Again she explained about the fish and that he mustn't touch them, only watch them.

But later she looked around from what she was doing and there he was again with the towel putting it in the fish bowl.

"Jimmy," she said, "don't do that."

"I'm drying them off," he insisted.

"Do you want me to take them back to the store?" she asked.

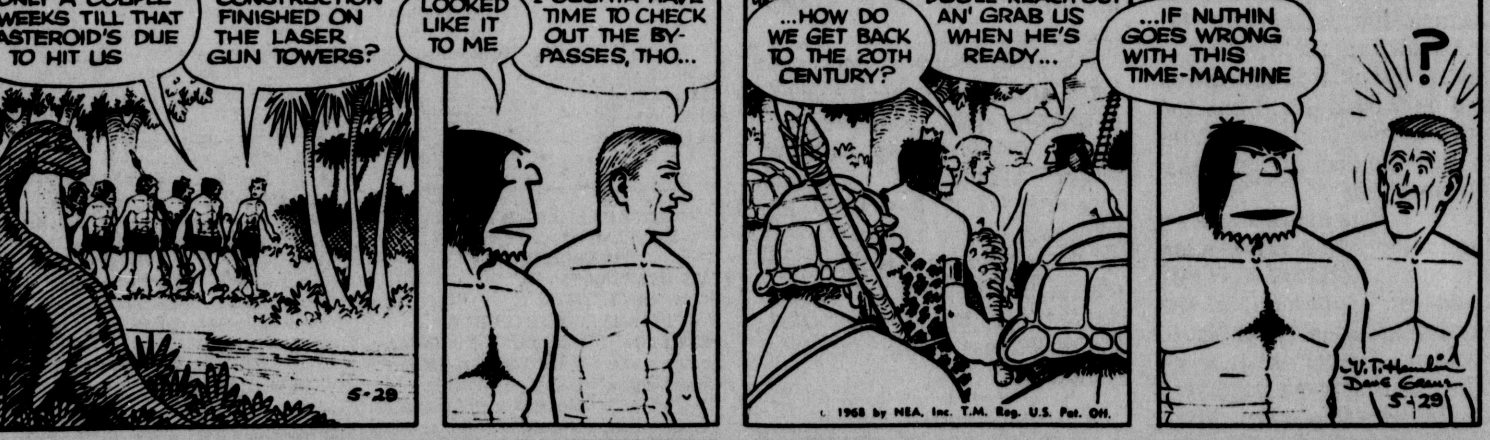

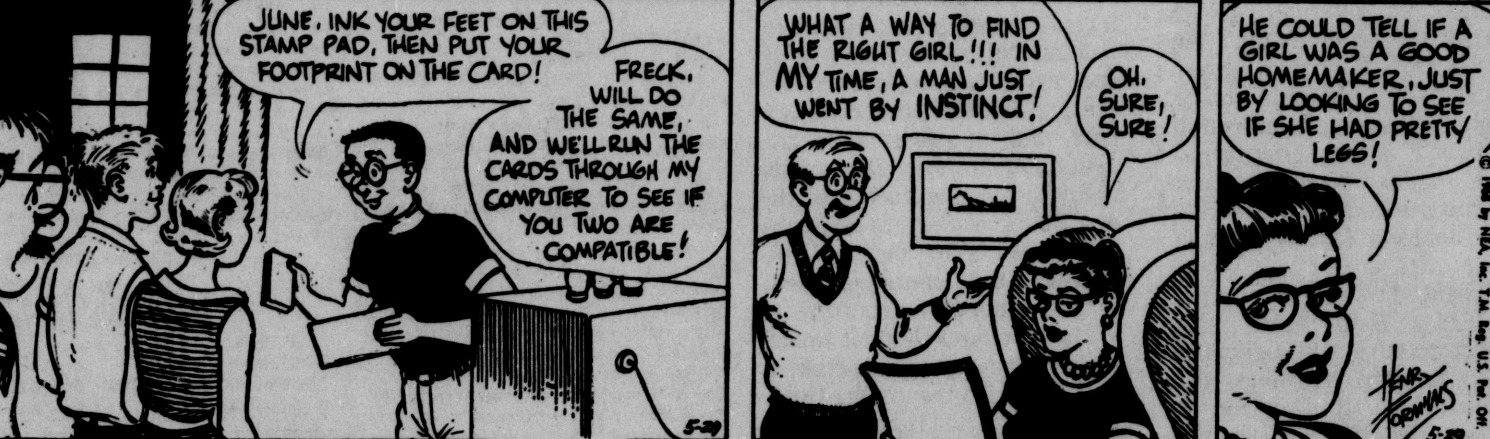

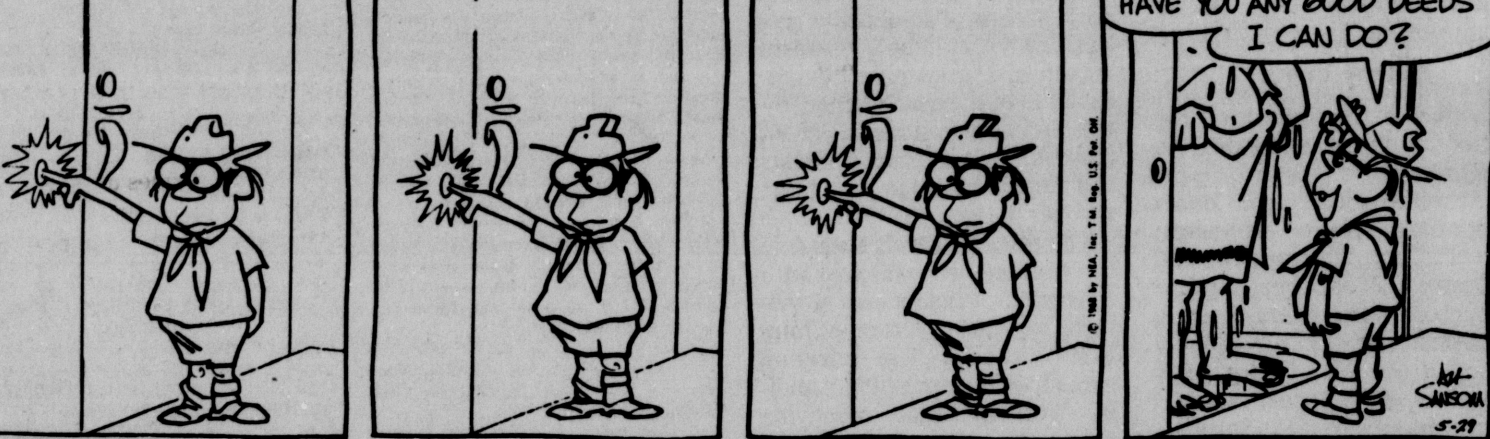

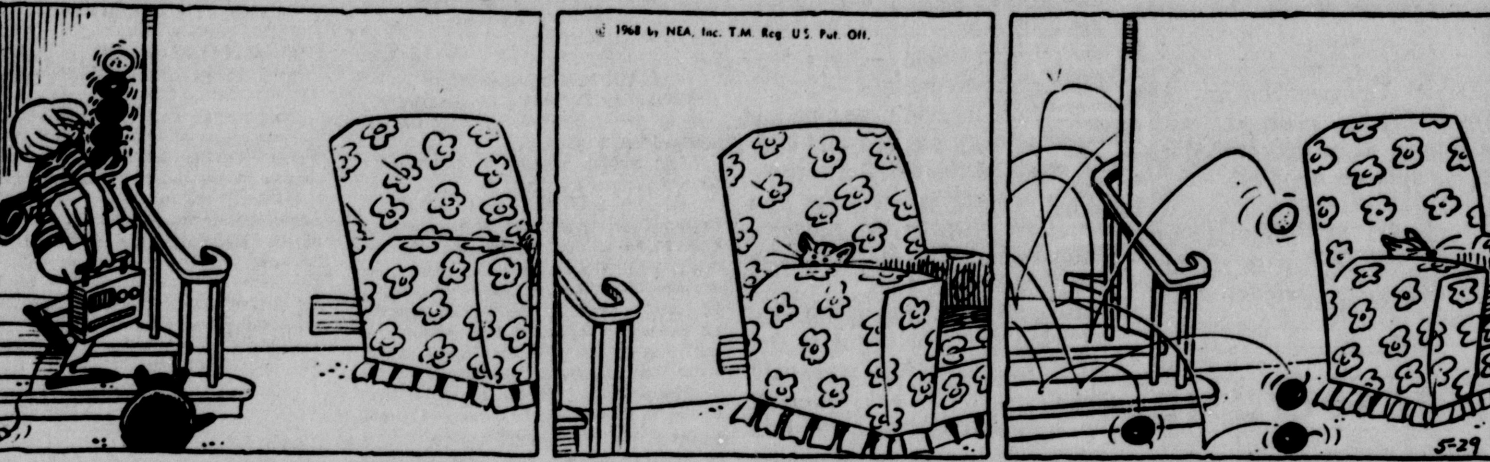

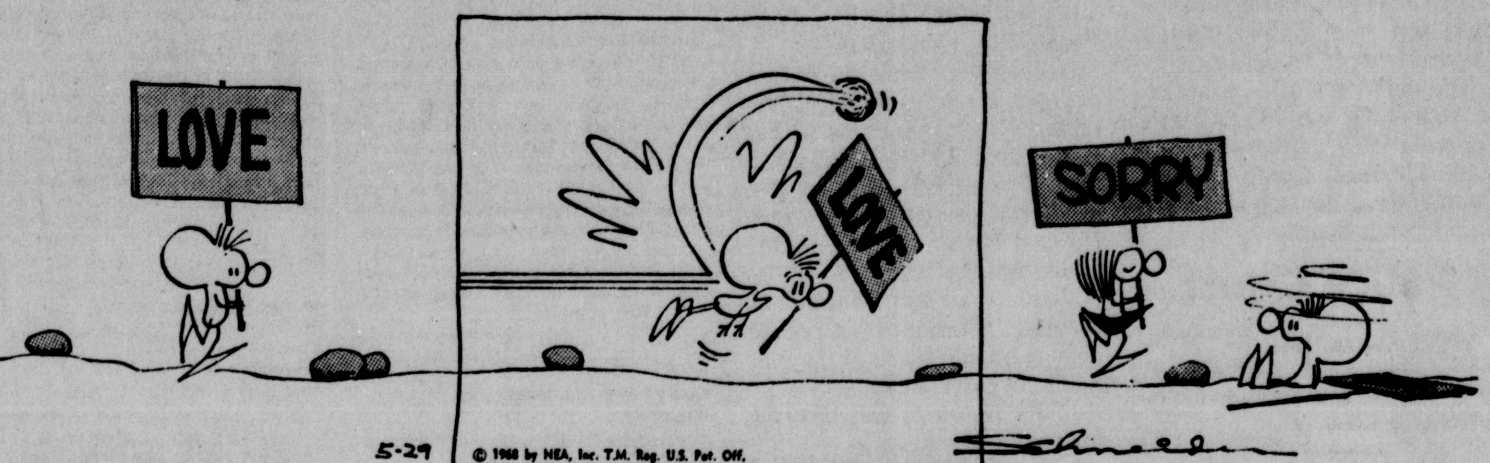

"Yes," replied the little boy, "they are all wet." H. L.

Guest Editorial

SPOKANE (Wash.) CHRONICLE: Civic Pride Can Lift City. — One of the big reasons why some cities are nicer to live in than others is a spirit of individual pride among its citizens. They keep up their homes and other properties. There's a sort of contagion about neatness and general maintenance. As a result a whole community can gain an attractive physical look which gives every appreciative person a lift.

But this is not an automatic attitude which simply develops and stays. It requires fostering and constant refreshing.

Cities of average size should be learning unforgettable lessons from the terrible trouble of the nation's bigger cities. While those troubles involve far more than living conditions, the manner in which physical facilities have been neglected for decades has played a big part in worsening the situation. A community spirit can do wonders which mere legislation might never achieve.

Slipcover Disguises Streaked Lamp Shade

DEAR POLLY—Grateful may find that making a slipcover for her water-streaked lamp shade would be the easiest solution. Use a piece of material two inches wider than the largest circumference of the shade and six inches longer than the height. Sew the ends of the material together with a five-eighths-inch seam on the wrong side. It will run up and down the shade. Make a casing at the top and one at the bottom (on the wrong side), wide enough to permit the insertion of narrow elastic. Cut the elastic to go in the casings short enough so it will draw the slipcover over the top and bottom edges snugly. Sew the elastic ends together after inserting. Slip the cover over your shade and arrange the gathers evenly. If the shade is narrower in the middle and flares out at top and bottom, a fitted band of the material could be sewn or tacked around the narrow part after the cover is in place. —MRS. B. I.

DEAR POLLY—Tell Grateful who has a water-streaked lamp shade that she can make a solution of dye, in the desired color, and dip the shade in and out of this until it is the color she wants. Then dip it in and out of cold water to remove the extra dye. Hang up to dry and it will look like new. —FLORENCE

DEAR GRATEFUL—May I add a bit to Florence's Pointer? Of course, she is speaking of a fabric shade. Be sure the dye container is large enough to cover the entire shade each time it is dipped in—the laundry tub might be a good place. Also, have the dye mixture hot and remember that when the shade is dry the color will be lighter than when wet. Also, the color selected for this dyeing would have to be darker than the streaks you are trying to hide. —POLLY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—My new vinyl raincoat was delivered in a box, and when I took it out it was full of wrinkles. The coat has hung in the closet for about a month and the wrinkles are still in it. Can someone please help me? —MARION

Determination Of Murder, And Suicide

ATCHISON, Kan. (AP) — A determination of murder and suicide has been reached by authorities in their investigation of the fatal shooting of four members of a farm family.

The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. William Harden and their daughters, Julie, 5, and Debbie, 3, were found Tuesday in their home near Old Huron, 13 miles northwest of Atchison.

Sheriff Al Heidrich said that at a meeting late Tuesday night of himself, the district coroner, an agent of the Kansas Bureau of Investigation and a Kansas City pathologist it was decided that Mrs. Harden, 28, shot her 30-year-old husband and the children and then killed herself.

The sheriff said time of death was placed at approximately 5:30 a.m. Tuesday and that the gun used was a .22-caliber revolver.

Reds

1,000 were killed in the past four days.

The only fighting around Saigon was in the southwest district of Phu Lam in the Chinese suburb of Cholon. South Vietnamese Marines and rangers tried to root out Viet Cong forces in a driving rainstorm.

Two tanks and four U.S. helicopter gunships blasted away at the Viet Cong positions. The size of the Viet Cong force was not known. At the height of house-to-house fighting Tuesday, it was estimated at about 400.

South Vietnamese officers said a Viet Cong captive indicated the infiltrators had suffered possibly 50 per cent casualties in two days of fighting. However, the South Vietnamese at the end of the day claimed only 14 Viet Cong killed Wednesday. South Vietnamese losses were 6 killed and 22 wounded.

In the central highlands, the U.S. Command had no reports of fighting in the mountains west of Dak To, where the 4th Infantry Division had opened a new offensive against North Vietnamese.

In the air war, U.S. pilots flew 108 missions Tuesday against North Vietnam's southern panhandle and reported destroying or damaging 13 trucks.

An Air Force F105 Thunderchief was shot down 45 miles north of the demilitarized zone and the pilot is missing.

Police Report

Clen E. Ball Jr., 18, 510 Dal-Whi-Mo Court, was shot about 12:29 p.m. Wednesday in the 400 block of South Engineer.

The incident was reported to police by Russell R. Conn III. Ball was taken to Bothwell Memorial Hospital, where he was treated and released.

Dr. David Edwards stated that the wound was caused by a weapon of small caliber — possibly a pellet gun. There was no slug in the wound. The wound was in the right small of the back.

William R. Turner, 612 West Third and Dennis W. Paxton, 1905 South Snead, had been with Ball earlier in the evening. When questioned by police, both men stated that they didn't know where the shot came from.

Ball told police that the shot had come from the south, and that a car was parked several blocks away. Ball also recalled that he heard something, turned around, and saw a man get in the car and drive away.

Police later found a mark on the Norman Stevens Building which could have been caused by a projectile. They are continuing the investigation.

Lightning Kills A Tractor Rider

KIRKSVILLE, Mo. (AP) — Lightning struck and killed Dr. William Thomas Reeves while he was riding on a tractor east of Kirksville Tuesday.

Dr. Thomas, 70, an osteopath, was accompanied on the tractor by his wife and their seven-year-old grandson. Neither Mrs. Reeves nor the child were hurt.

The accident occurred on the Reeves farm.

Circuit Court

Thomas E. Marlin was granted a divorce from Lola Marlin Wednesday morning. The attorney for the plaintiff was William F. Brown.

John Wayne Griggs, Columbia, charged with robbery in the first degree with a deadly weapon, was found guilty Tuesday by a Pettis County jury. The court sentenced the defendant 20 years and committed him to the custody of the State Department of Corrections.

The defendant filed a notice of appeal to the Missouri Supreme Court following his trial. The case was in Pettis County on a change of venue from Cooper County.

Police Court

Lloyd A. Romig, 625 West Sixth, loud and unnecessary noise with a motor vehicle, forfeited a $25 bond.

Danny Harrison Cope, 1500 South Mildred, speeding 39 miles an hour in a 30-mile-an-hour zone, continued to June 14.

Daniel Douglas Harms, 619 West Third, charged with running a stop sign, failed to appear and was fined $15.

Eunice B. Cochran, 2001 East Seventh, charged with running two stop signs, forfeited a $10 bond.

meeting at City Hall.

James T. Denny, Pettis County Democratic Committee chairman, was introduced and in turn introduced the various candidates running for county office, including Rep. Joe F. Rains, 115 District, which includes all of Sedalia and the northern half of Pettis County. Other candidates: for the nomination of judge of the Eastern District, Judge E.L. "Red" Birdsong, T.M. "Tom" Moriarty and Earl R. Albers; Lt. Col. Sam G. Tuck, Houstonia, candidate for judge of the Western District; Emmett Fairfax for sheriff; Jerry Trotter for assessor; Floyd Farris for public administrator; Keith Eckstrom for county engineer and surveyor; and Dr. C.G. Stauffacher for coroner, the latter six being unopposed in the primary.

Also introduced were County Recorder Reno Johnson; Circuit Clerk William Lyles and County Treasurer Virgil Houshens. Mrs. Laura Fischer, vice-chairman of the County Committee; Mrs. Mary Sims and Mrs. D.C. Davis, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Salveter. Salveter is a former county chairman.

Mrs. Janice Sloan, Green Ridge, an alternate to the national convention, and Homer Cunningham, Hughesville, delegate to the state convention; John Ashford, Marshall, acting chairman of the Saline County Young Democrats; and members of the Johnson County Women's Democratic Club were introduced by Mrs. Hugelman.

Mrs. Hugelman read congratulatory messages from Sen. Edward V. Long; Rep. William J. Randall of the Fourth District and Lt. Gov. Thomas Eagleton, as well as message from William Mathieson, Pettis County chairman for True Davis for senator inviting the member to a tea for Davis at the Bothwell Hotel on Wednesday. Long and Eagleton are also candidates for the Democratic nomination for senator.

Mrs. Hugelman also announced a county-wide meeting, "Know Your Candidates," sponsored by the County Extension Services, to be held at Liberty Park June 8.

The meeting was closed with the benediction by Rep. Spahnower, also a Christian Church minister.

The rebellious element among the students and young workers now seems to regard the Communist party, the Roman Catholic Church, the Gaullists and probably most of the older generation as political enemies all manning the bastions of middle class conservatism.

Whatever happens now, the Fifth Republic has been shaken to its core. Angry young revolutionists caused many of their fellow Frenchmen to think thoughts which had been unthinkable.

Like the people in the nursery tale of the emperor's clothing, the youthful upheaval exposed the nakedness of the country's leadership.

mands for greater military efforts in Vietnam while the Paris talks proceed. Reagan has taken a hard line on the war.

Sen. Wayne Morse, a severe critic of Johnson's Asian policy, appeared to be standing off a threat to his renomination by former Rep. Robert Duncan, a Johnson backer.

Off on a delegate hunting tour in Arizona, Texas and Georgia, Nixon exuded confidence that his 73 per cent of the GOP vote in Oregon would topple fence-sitters into his camp and help boost him toward an early ballot nomination at the Miami Beach, Fla., convention.

Rockefeller, who got only 4 per cent in a write-in, told Chelyenne, Wyo., Republicans that Nixon had lost the 1960 presidential election because he could not carry the big cities. He said Nixon is still laboring under that handicap.

Nixon carried Multnomah County (Portland), Oregon's biggest population area, by four could not carry the big cities. He said Nixon is still laboring under that handicap.

Nixon carried Multnomah County (Portland), Oregon's biggest population area, by four to one over Reagan with write-ins still to be counted. His vote was larger than either McCarthy's or Kennedy's.

Rockefeller told newsmen that he was "very pleased and very grateful" at the write-in vote he got in a state in which he won the 1964 primary by intensive campaigning. He did not come into Oregon this time.

Reagan was happy at his showing of 23 per cent of the vote, he said. This was only slightly more than he received in Nebraska, where a far less intensive television campaign was put on for him.

The California governor held to his line that he will not become an active candidate for the nomination but will have his name placed before the convention as a favorite son and then it will be up to the delegates whether they want to support him.

Reagan is unopposed in the California primary for the state's 86 convention votes.

long fuse—that helped bring about the explosion.

The demonstration brought some arrests of students, a protest rally at the Nanterre branch of Paris University, occupation of the dean's office, revolt among the students, chain reaction among Paris students and finally rebellion by a large number of them.

The fever of revolt spread to the workers, who watched with interest the student use of violence to bring government ministers to heel. The infection spread with astonishing rapidity. Workers began occupying premises. In many cases, the workers seemed beyond the control of their union leaders.

While the CGT and its Communist leaders moved swiftly to regain control, they did so at the cost of making even wider

Quinn Plagued By Self-Doubt

ROME, Italy (NEA)

Anthony Quinn had been playing the part of the Pope in "The Shoes of the Fisherman" for about a month.

It is, as you can imagine, a difficult part for a sensitive actor to attempt. As he says, it is relatively easy to depict the surface features of the job—the Pope that the public sees—but tremendously challenging to give the Pope a believable human side.

"After all," Quinn says, "the Pope is a man—he has to get up, he has to eat, he has to live. How do you show that side of him?"

At any rate, he had been attempting it for about a month when he began to be troubled with self-doubt. He wasn't sure if he was succeeding.

One morning, he woke up and his right eye was swollen. The next day, the other eye was similarly affected. Then the affliction spread throughout his face—"it was blown up to three times its normal size."

The doctor diagnosed it as a sty which had somehow spread its infection throughout his face. But, while he was convalescing, Quinn was reading about Popes. And he came across a reference to "The Monk's Disease"—an affliction which resulted in swollen eyes and face.

"It was a disease," Quinn says, "which hit young priests during their training. Generally, they got it during the transitional period between the exigencies of the flesh and the spirit."

Unknowningly, Quinn had come down with the same thing, an apparently psychosomatic disease brought about by self-doubt. He still has some of that doubt remaining, but he is carrying on.

The part is, he says, the most difficult by far of any in his career. Not only difficult on-camera, but off, too.

"The attitude of the people," he says, "compels me to be very cautious. I must be entirely circumspect in my behavior. I can't possibly be seen in a night club, for example."

He was filming a difficult scene in a little street near the Piazza Farnese. He had, in the script, just been elected Pope and was wandering the streets of Rome, trying to understand what had happened. As he wandered, he was brushed by a car, driven by a woman.

A little red Mini-Morris, driven by the fine English actress, Barbara Jefford, was the culprit. Since Quinn is too valuable a property to fool around with, a stunt girl was doing the actual driving.

Quinn, whose Italian is perfect, urged the driver to go faster, to come closer—he wanted the scene to look good. But the girl went too far, too fast, too close, and Quinn was thrown under the wheel. The girl slammed on the brakes. Quinn was unhurt, and his anger was not directed at the driver.

"The poor people," he said. "They're not told exactly what to do or how to do it, and then they don't know how to do it so naturally they do it wrong."

But director Michael Anderson had had enough near-catastrophe. He ordered ropes attached to the front bumper of the car and the grips, off-camera, pulled it into the scene. It worked perfectly on the first take.
